Puppies invade city hall

A touching story of human interest developed last week in Romulus involving several city hall employees and 11 orphaned puppies left at the Romulus Animal Control Center. Two litters of pups of mixed origin were dropped at the doorstep of the dog pound last week by their owners. All of the puppies were less than a month old, and still had their eyes and ears closed. Ordinarily, the center has no means to care for newborn animals. However, according to kennel custodian Bob Kirk, (pictured in photo feeding one of the pups with a eye dropper), word rapidly spread around city hall of the young puppies' plight, and three volunteer "parents" stepped forward to claim the puppies and began a schedule of regular feedings. Using formulas of evaporated milk and warm water, the three dog lovers, Raymond Cantrell, Joyce Morgan and Betty Holbrook, are now settling into the routine, although they are appearing at work slightly bleary-eyed. They'll have to wait several months to discover if the cute little things turn into giant meat eaters. Although it's difficult to determine, Kirks thinks they have some hunting dog characteristics, and may turn into versatile pets. There are still five puppies remaining at the center and are available to good homes free of charge. For information, call 941-0666, extension 77, for additional information. (Photo by Jay Young.)

Developer needs funds now

City okays rezoning for senior high-rise

Construction of a new senior citizens high-rise building in Romulus came one step closer last week when city council voted unanimously to rezone almost two square blocks of city land that will permit developers to go ahead with the project.

Over the last few months, continued opposition and criticism had come from several quarters, including a group of concerned residents calling itself Citizens Against Exploitation (CAE).

CAE members expressed their dissatisfaction with the project through questions presented at several meetings held by the city and through press releases.

They questioned whether the city would have to increase sewer capacity in the area bounded roughly by Olive, Bibbins, Shook and the alley behind Goddard, pointing out that taxpayers might have to shoulder increased costs for that service.

Last week's council action rezoned the land proposed for the high-rise from R1A (single-family residential) and C-2 (general business) to HRM (high-rise multiple).

Also hit was the developer's lack of information and inability to answer questions on such items as: number of units in the high-rise, number of stories, ability of city firemen to handle fires there, need for additional police protection, and filling vacant units with low-income families.

CAE, in particular, fought hard for the right of citizens to provide input to and be given specific answers on the high-rise project at a special session provided by the city at least two weeks before rezoning approval could take place.

The portion of the two square blocks designated for the high-rise is the land now occupied by the old Romulus Elementary School building. The school and land were purchased recently for $200,000 by North Cranbrook Associated. The firm will tear down the school and use the land for the new senior citizens building.

Leo Sklar, developer for North Cranbrook and designated agent for the city for the high-rise project, was the target of much of the local opposition.

According to Patrick A. Hogan, community development director, the developer must now secure funding from the Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA). If approved, the developer will then give MSHDA a mortgage on the high-rise building in return for the loan to finance its construction.

The developer will pay off the mortgage from rentals received from tenants of the high-rise. Occupants of the building will pay 25 percent of their income for rent, with the balance paid for by the federal government under the rental assistance program.

That, the developer must seek approval of the city planning commission on site plans and then be approved by the city zoning board of appeals for various variances and other requirements specified by the city.

Council limits area for truck terminals to city's northeast

Concerned residents in northeast Romulus will have many of their fears eliminated in regard to existing truck terminals and future ones in their area thanks to action last week by city council.

Council unanimously approved an amendment to the zoning ordinance that creates two new zoning classifications — M-T1 and M-T2.

The latter one actually rezones the area in the old M-2 (heavy industrial) classification, stipulating that all truck terminals are located in the city.

The new M-T1 zoning classification modifies the old M-1 (light industrial) zoning, adding more stringent requirements that will afford better protection to nearby residents and/or commercial properties, he explained.

Previous to last week's action, truck terminal construction was confined to M-2 zoning district only.

Included in the rezoning changes was the rezoning of a portion of the old M-2 district to M-T2, the area where many truck terminals now exist. The area is bounded on the west by Middlebelt Road, on the south by Goddard Road, on the east by Inkster Road, and on the north by Ecorse Road.

Residents in the northeast section of the city complained about many truck terminals in their area, the traffic generated and the noise and general inconvenience.

Folmar said council feels that the new M-T1 and M-T2 zoning classifications will alleviate most of their concerns.

Attendant shot pumping gas

A Romulus service station attendant is in serious condition after being shot in the back Thursday night by one of three men into whose car he was pumping gasoline at the time.

In serious condition at Wayne County General Hospital with one, possibly two bullets still lodged in his upper right back, is Orvie V. Faber, 42, of Garden City.

The Wayne County Sheriff's Department received an anonymous telephone call identifying one of the three black males as the man who fired the gun and are attempting to locate the caller.

Det. Ed Lindberg said the sheriff's department would like to have the anonymous caller get in touch with them and promised that his or her name would be kept confidential.

Lindberg said police received a call at 11:28 p.m. Thursday about a shooting at the Clark service station at 29056 Ecorse Road, Romulus.

Arriving on the scene officers Donald Twitchell and W.C. Jones found Faber bleeding from a back wound and $57 missing from the cash register.

The attendant told officers he was pumping gasoline into a car containing three black males and that the driver had stepped out of the old two-door Chrysler to lift the hood and check the oil.

Faber said the next thing he knew he was shot in the back and that he remembers seeing a blue steel revolver held by one of the men. He said he ran across the street to a guard shack for an area company and told the man he had been shot. The guard told police he had heard two shots, but could find no evidence that Faber had been hit.

The two men returned to the service station and the guard called police, Lindberg said. The three men had fled in the meantime, Lindberg said.

The detective urged that anyone having knowledge of the robbery and shooting to contact the sheriff's department at 721-2222.

Crowd waits for Santa

Hundreds of anxious well-wishers jammed the Romulus City Hall steps last week to catch a glimpse of the arrival of Santa Claus aboard one of the city's fire trucks. The annual event, which officially marks the beginning of the Christmas season in the city, was witnessed this year by over 500 people. Santa, who many say looks a lot like Councilman Junior Block, was accompanied by Christmas Carol (Debbie Bilbrey) and was presented the key to the city by Mayor William M. Oakley. The crowd was serenaded by the North Junior High School chorus, under the direction of Kim Shea, while waiting in line to talk to Santa and receive presents of fruit, candy, hot chocolate and doughnuts. This is the eighth annual celebration sponsored yearly by the Romulus Recreation Department. (Photo by Jay Young.)

Thieves grab Christmas gifts

The coming Christmas season will be somewhat dampened for 22-year-old David Helms of Romulus after an early morning robbery Saturday at his house resulted in the loss of personal belongings and Christmas gifts valued at approximately $2,500.

When David's mother, Marie Helms, came over just before 6 a.m. Saturday, she found her son's dog in the front yard, nearly frozen stiff. When she entered the house at 2864 Smith Rd., she was horrified to see contents of dresser drawers strewn on the floor, sofa cushions slashed, heating ducts torn out of the walls and many items missing.

"My son usually leaves for work

"We're pretty sure and so are the police who's

about 5:30 in the morning," explained Mrs. Helms. "I must have just missed the robbers."

She said that in a matter of only a few minutes, thieves had ransacked David's house, making away with two stereo sets, a portable black and white television set, a clock radio, a new vise and a watch her son had bought for his father for Christmas, a leather case filled with tapes, and several record albums.

"We've been having these robberies and breakins out here in Ecorse Subdivision No. 2 since 1973. We're pretty sure and so are the police who's doing it," said Mrs. Helms, whose own house was robbed that year of some $800 in merchandise.

She claimed that the owner of a nearby ice factory was robbed recently of about $4,000 in machine tools. Also, a neighbor across the street, a retired school custodian, had a watch given to him on his retirement stolen from his house.

"A next door neighbor of my son had $3,000 in property stolen from the house also," Mrs. Helms said. The Wayne County Sheriff's Department is investigating the latest robbery at the Helms residence.

"It's terrible," exclaimed Mrs. Helms. "My son had done a lot of Christmas shopping. After he leaves for work, it took those robbers about 15 minutes to clean him out. It won't be a very nice Christmas for him."

Industries to be feted

Local industries in Romulus will be guests of the Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce and the city of Romulus at a cocktail party Thursday, Dec. 21, 1978 from 3 to 6 p.m. at the VFW Hall, 39270 Huron River Dr., Romulus.

An invitation issued jointly by Mayor William M. Oakley and Dr. C. J. Carpenter, chamber president, read:

"This is our way of expressing our appreciation for your presence in our community and for the contribution your business makes to our city and its residents throughout the year."

Grant hearings set

Romulus City Council last week approved Jan. 4 and Jan. 25 for public hearings at 7:30 p.m. at city hall on $120,000 in community development block grant funds expected next year.

Council approved recommendations for the two hearings made by Patrick A. Hogan, community development director.

Hogan told council that the first public hearing is set aside for citizen input on how the funds should be spent, while the second session is held to inform citizens of council's decision on how the funds will be spent.

Hogan informed council that Jan. 23, a Tuesday and regularly scheduled council meeting night, could be used for council members to decide how the money should be spent.

Hogan said he would apply for the grant funds before the deadline of Feb. 1, 1979 for the fiscal year 1979 (July 1, 1979 through July 3, 1980).

The expenditure of 1979 funds must either benefit low-moderate income persons, eliminate slums or blight, or meet an urgent community need, Hogan explained.

Boy, 4, paralyzed as Yule approaches

The yuletide season abounds each year with stories of joy and those of tragedy. For four-year-old Eddie Melton of Romulus, paralyzed from the chin down, Christmas promises to hold little to be happy about.

Eddie, the son of Roy and Cheryl Melton, suffered a serious spinal injury last July 23 when he was struck by a car in front of the family home.

When treatment locally failed to make much improvement in his condition, Eddie and his family were flown to Englewood, Colo., where he underwent two months of treatment at a well-known rehabilitation center.

On Dec. 15, Eddie arrived back in Romulus, still paralyzed. His condition had not improved and his mother was suffering from near exhaustion. She had given birth to a baby girl a few weeks after Eddie's accident, but had neglected the infant to take care of her injured son. Fortunately, her brother's family looked after the child while the Meltons were in Colorado.

Cheryl, who is employed as a nurse in the intensive care unit at Annapolis Hospital, is being helped with Eddie's care by a friend, also a nurse. However, she is in desperate need of another nurse to watch over the paralyzed young boy during the daylight hours.

Eddie's tragic mishap has left the family quite depressed and the coming Christmas season, according to friends, will do little to cheer them up, especially their paralyzed son.

A family friend suggested that perhaps a personal visit from Santa Claus would do wonders to raise the little boy's spirits. He is able to sit up in a wheelchair with the aid of a respirator.

In this season of miracles, perhaps the Christmas fairy will see to it that young Eddie Melton has one of the best Christmases he'll ever have.

To interior property owners

Colleran recommends repaying paving assessments

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

City Council two weeks ago voted to refund paving assessments to all interior property owners on Cherry Hill Road from Inkster Road to Henry Ruff.

JAMES COLLERAN

'These costs are more than 5 percent lower...'

The first payments on the 10-year assessment were made Sept. 1, 1972.

Colleran made a second motion that would exempt interior property owners on North Middlebelt Road (Special Assessment Roll No. 168) with Circuit Court's permission. There is currently a lawsuit before Circuit Court that includes the interior property owners on North Middlebelt Road as well as the abutting property owners.

Colleran's motion directed the city attorney to make known to Circuit Court the council's action in cancelling the Special Assessment on Interior Property Owners on Paving Roll 173 (Cherry Hill Road), and that with the court's permission council would also cancel the Special assessments on Interior Property Owners on N. Middlebelt.

However, since the interior property owners are included in the N. Middlebelt paving lawsuit, city officials do not know whether Circuit Court would permit them to be exempted from the paving assessment.

Councilman Colleran's motion to exempt interior lot owners on Cherry Hill Road and N. Middlebelt Road (if the Circuit Court permits) came because of a 1976 State Supreme Court ruling. The highest court ruled two years ago that interior lot owners in the South Middlebelt paving assessment area should be exempted from the assessment because they did not benefit that much from the new 5-lane highway.

Based on that court ruling, Colleran moved to have City Council exempt interior property owners on Cherry Hill Road, who have not filed any lawsuit. He also wants to exempt N. Middlebelt Road interior property owners if the Circuit Court permits.

"The City of Inkster has been provided with the total costs for the paving improvement of Middlebelt Road from Michigan Ave. to Cherry Hill Rd. (Paving Roll 168) and Cherry Hill Rd. from Inkster Rd. to Henry Ruff (Paving Roll 173)," Colleran said in a prepared statement at Monday night's council meeting.

"These costs are more than five percent lower than the estimated costs in determining the amount of special assessment levied in these two rolls. Therefore, and in accordance with the City Charter and the Special Assessment Ordinance Council must authorize a reduction in the rolls as follows:

— Roll 168 — North Middlebelt Road, reduce by 18.46 percent.

— Roll 173 — West Cherry Hill Road, reduce by 17.15 percent.

"The Inkster City Council has, on several occasions, formally and informally, made known their intent to give consideration to those interior property owners who have been assessed on these two rolls, because of the (State) Supreme Court decision in the Willie Johnson Case regarding South Middlebelt Road."

Colleran further stated it was not possible for the council to take any action at this time on North Middlebelt Road because of a class action lawsuit against the city in Circuit Court.

"However," Colleran pointed out, "the Council can act on Cherry Hill Road. I move that the special assessments levied on interior property owners on Paving Roll 173 — Cherry Hill from Inkster Road to Henry Ruff, be cancelled, and that the City Treasurer be directed to prepare a schedule for Council approval."

Colleran's motion further directed the treasurer to show the amounts to be refunded to those interior property owners who have paid a portion or all of their assessment, and the amount to be refunded abutting property owners based on the 17.15 percent cost factor; the method he proposes to follow in making refunds, and specify the funds from which the repayment will come.

That motion was passed by council.

Then Colleran made his second motion, "that this body (council) direct the City Attorney to make known to the Circuit Court, our action regarding Cherry Hill, and that with the Court's permission, we would cancel the assessment on the interior properties assessed on North Middlebelt."

Colleran added, "If we can obtain the Court's permission to refund to the interior property owners the full amount of their assessments they have paid, that refund could be made along with the refund due the abutting property owners due to the cost being lower than estimated."

The eight-year councilman concluded by saying, "I propose we hold off any action on Middlebelt Road, pending the Circuit Court action as recommended by the City Attorney."

City Treasurer Bruce Cook said quite a bit of paperwork was involved in preparing the repayment schedule, but he hoped to have it ready for council's approval at its next meeting on Dec. 18.

MATTHEW 1:21—And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call His name Jesus: for He shall save the people from their sins.

MATTHEW 2:1—Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the King, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem.

ISAIAH 53:5—But He was wounded for our Transgressions. He was bruised for our iniquities: The Chastisement of our peace was upon Him; and with His stripes we are healed.

Dear friends, as we celebrate this special occasion let us remember that this precious Christ Child, born to the Virgin Mary, is no longer a cuddly child in a manger, but since that day, has preached the Gospel of salvation. He suffered great pain, even unto death, on the cross, was buried with the dead, but came forth from the grave with power over death, Hell and the grave. He did ascend into Heaven and at this moment is seated on the right hand of the Father making intercession for you and me.

Today, she is still a patient in the University of Michigan Hospital, Ann Arbor, with release not yet in sight. She has undergone five operations, including plastic surgery and a cornea transplant.

Mrs. Stockdale lost her left eye, may yet lose the vision in her right eye, suffered a hip dislocation, and fracture of the nose, jaw and face. Currently, she is battling a meningitis infection.

Friends who wish to write to her can address mail to: Mrs. Edith E. Stockdale, 9th Floor — W, Bed 5, University of Michigan Hospital, Ann Arbor, Mich. 48108.

Rotarian teams to visit Australia

Rotary Clubs of the Greater Detroit Area, including Belleville, New Boston and Romulus, and Essex County of Ontario are seeking young business men to represent District 640 as a group study team in Australia during the spring of 1980.

Interested candidates, who cannot be Rotarians, or sons or sons-in-law or dependents of Rotarians, can contact the Rotary Clubs in their areas for applications.

The group study to Australia offers a unique person-to-person opportunity for the promotion of better understanding and friendly relations among peoples of the world. The program will provide travel grants for the exchange of teams of young business and professional men between paired districts in different countries, enabling them to study the institutions and ways of life of their hosts and to develop personal acquaintances and exchange of ideas.

Each Rotary district will select a team of five outstanding young men between the ages of 25 and 35 who represent a cross-section of business and professions in the district. The team will be sent to a corresponding district in another nation for a two-month tour.

Transportation costs to Australia and back will be paid by the Rotary Foundation. Food, lodging and transportation in Australia will be the responsibility of the local Rotary Club.

Accused slayer of 5 is found incompetent

Romulus Community Schools Supt. James Garfield and Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley have released accomplishments thus far of a joint city-school committee formed several months ago.

Out of an original list of 20 items, four have been begun with the following results:

1) A joint newsletter entitled "Around the City" is now being published quarterly and mailed to residents, with the cost being shared by the city and school system.

2) Guidelines have been established on the use of equipment and sharing of tasks.

3) The Romulus Help Center director and new special services director have met to discuss ways in which the center may be utilized by the school system.

4) The city grants department has been appraised of the regional park idea and has suggested possible funding sources, pending a recommendation by the committee and the two governmental bodies.

Other items of business acted upon include a joint administrative luncheon held Dec. 13, 1978 at the high school Romulette Room; a library workshop for school para-professionals conducted by the city librarian; elementary school mothers weekly volunteer book distribution work; school district involvement with the city beautification committee; and student help with city projects such as the airport survey and the "Welcome to Romulus" sign, etc.

Other projects currently under consideration include a special school page in the Romulus Roman, a community-wide social event involving city resident and Romulus alumnus John Long, arranging meetings with service clubs to deal with school problems and the possibility of the committee initiating a community services directory.

A questionnaire, distributed at the Dec. 13, 1978 luncheon was designed to elicit additional ideas from city and school staff.

The committee has met monthly and established a working relationship among its members. The committee is now actively seeking additional input to improve or complement the cooperative programs currently underway or planned.

The joint committee is composed of principals Art McPharlin, Terrel M. LeCesne and Joel Carr, for the school system, and the city by Larry Moore, finance director; John Shea, mayor's assistant; and Jay Young, public information officer.

Survey shows Metro Airport to be stable until year 2000

A recent preliminary survey taken at Detroit Metro Airport showed an average of 12,000 persons leave the air terminal on any given day, with men outnumbering women by a better than two to one ratio.

This fact and others were brought out in a meeting of the Wayne County Road Commission, which operates the huge air facility; officials representing many Wayne County communities; officials of several county organizations including SEMTA and the Wayne County Planning Commission; and Trans Plan, Inc., and Johnson & Associates, Inc., and the county to come up with a master plan study of the airport.

Brought out at the session were the ways in which the general public will participate in the preparation of the overall master plan study. Jim Chaffers, Nathan Johnson & Associates, Inc., said these would include surveys, questionnaires, and future review team and public information meetings.

Freo Kimball, of Trans Plan, presented slides which showed the following points relative to an aviation forecast for the air terminal:

- 1) Forecasts of the number of general aviation aircraft which would be based at Metro Airport for the period 1980-2000, showed they remain fairly constant at approximately 100, plus or minus 20.
- 2) Cargo forecasts disclosed that air cargo at Metro Airport will grow to about 400,000 tons a year and air mail to about 100,000 tons a year by the year 2000. Also, it was emphasized that a gradual evolution would take place to the use of more wide-bodied aircraft and away from narrow-bodied and propeller driven aircraft.

3) The 10 leading markets accounted for 43 percent of all domestic passengers carried by trunk lines.

Discussion at the session also revealed that general aviation growth at Metro was limited compared to that at Willow Run Airport because aircraft landing at Metro must have more sophisticated electronic equipment. Also, facts compiled showed that Willow Run has more room for general aviation development.

Also limiting general aviation growth at Metro is the desire of the average general aviation pilot not to want to operate out of a major airport if other suitable facilities are located nearby.

Also limiting general aviation growth at Metro is the desire of the average general aviation pilot not to want to operate out of a major airport if other suitable facilities are located nearby.

The cost of real estate versus the anticipated return, and the strain in terms of movements placed on a runway system primarily designed for air carrier traffic also limit general aviation growth at Metro, the discussion revealed.

Concern was expressed by Jon R. Hagg, of the FAA-ADO, that Metro Airport would be limited to some 100 general aviation based aircraft.

Robert A. Larson, director of transportation for the road commission, explained that the forecast was realistic and that based aircraft have been dropping at Metro for a number of years and that the trend is continuing.

In other discussion, Edward A. Mellman, of MDSHT, said the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) has stated that a city which loses air carrier service because of deregulation can have commuter service subsidized by the CAB between that city and a hub airport where connections could be made to other parts of the nation.

Mellman commented that commuter operators coming into Metro could create greater demands for space at the airport.

Kimball explained that the CAB is becoming more reluctant to subsidize local airlines, preferring instead to give the subsidy to local communities.

Bruce Singer, also of Trans Plan, pointed out that based on the number of forecasted operations and the capacity of the existing runway system, that another east-west runway is needed.

Also, said, although air cargo growth is seen as "fairly good" in the next few years, no need exists for the building of a large air cargo facility at Metro.

More meetings are to be held in the near future to discuss other facets of the overall master plan study for Metro.

Mayor William M. Oakley (pictured in background with hand over heart) stands to attention while members of Boy Scout Troup 1739 raise the American flag to the sound of taps played by members of the Romulus High School Marching band trumpet section at the Open house for the new Romulus fire station No. 4. The open house of the station located at 28777 Eureka Rd. marks the second such event in the past several months of a major municipal building in Romulus. (The 34th District Court was opened similarly in October.) The more than 300 citizens who attended were shown a variety of displays exhibited by local citizen groups, given tours of the building and treated to refreshments provided by the fire department. As a special treat, youngsters were visited by Santa Claus and given special chocolate suckers. Their parents were given engraved key chains mementoes to mark the occasion. Members of the Boy Scout color guard pictured are Mike Camilleri, Gordon Gowder and Richard Bogden, Jr. (Photo by Jay Young).

Eloise's D Building: Psychiatric unit takes on new 'home' atmosphere

By KAY DeBORD

A lot of changes have come to old D Building at Eloise, as it is familiarly known to residents of the areas surrounding the facility.

In the not-so-recent past it also was the Wayne County Psychiatric Hospital. And now, as a state-operated facility, the Metropolitan Regional Psychiatric Hospital is celebrating its first birthday as the "newest, oldest" state hospital in Michigan.

Tuesday the staff of the hospital combined the birthday with Christmas festivities in a program planned by a committee, headed by L.L. McKenzie, psychologist on the staff, Mrs. Cheryl Thomas, a personnel secretary, and Dennis Buhr, recreational therapist.

What really was celebrated were the changes that have come about in the past year, not only in the physical plant atmosphere, but in patient and personnel attitudes, according to Anthony Dravik, director of the hospital.

The bleak institutional atmosphere has slowly, but surely taken on a new aspect as carpeting has been laid down in the area of the four wards. The pictures, greenery, lighting, books and magazines lend more of a "home" feeling to the hospital.

Bright, "happy" paint has been used to create better moods in the corridors, in the day room and in the wards. Drapers are not all replaced yet but those hanging are colorful and complement the wall paint.

Just as in private homes there are book shelves being installed, and newspapers and magazines vie with television and the piano to add variety to time not spent in recreational therapy programs, also held in rooms newly-decorated in keeping with the "brighter and better" project.

In preparation for the holidays, the wards and day rooms are decorated with trees and garlands, many the creations of the patients who wish to share in the "new look" that is taking over at the hospital.

Dravik pointed out that the changes are in keeping with the purpose of treatment, which also includes educational as well as recreational therapy classes, and demonstrates that there is "no desire to warehouse" people there for treatment.

At the present time the facility houses some 176 patients and "turn-around" time averages 30 days, according to the hospital director.

Patients who become upset are allowed to get away and gain control in what is a "quiet room," a far cry from a desolate cell-like place that the public envisions. There they can just relax and think, or otherwise occupy themselves until they are ready to return to the company of others, according to staff members.

The wards, previously row-on-row of beds, now have free-standing dividers, nightstands and storage space that allows for privacy and caters to the dignity of the individual. Personal touches are encouraged by the staff of each ward. "Everyone is responding to the positive attitude," McKenzie said, and the project is not yet completed.

Looking back, Metropolitan Regional Psychiatric Hospital has a right to claim it is the "oldest" as well as the "newest" facility for the treatment of the mentally ill in the state.

It was in 1839 the site, then occupied by the Black Horse Tavern, was purchased by Wayne County and the Poor Farm was moved from Detroit to what is now Westland. Although the first psychiatric patient was admitted as early as 1839, its formal use as a psychiatric unit didn't come about until just before the Civil War. The facility served a dual purpose — a poor farm for the indigent and a place for the care of the mentally disturbed, needed because the state did not provide for hospitalizing psychiatric patients until 1879.

Until 1940, the institution was governed by a five-man board — Superintendents of the Poor. Then a new state welfare law was adopted, relieving the superintendents of the responsibility for the care of the needy. At the same time, the board was renamed the Wayne County Board of County Institutions.

The general hospital operation opened in 1932, increasing the operation to the hospital, the poor farm (or infirmary) and the psychiatric division. The early name of Eloise Hospital was changed to Wayne County General Hospital at that time. Other changes came about, and the infirmary was replaced by the Extended Care Facility in 1967 and the psychiatric unit became a separate operation in 1975.

The bulk of mental patients hospitalized beyond one year were transferred by the state from the Psychiatric Division to state hospitals in 1972, and on Dec. 19, 1977, it took over the complete operation of the psychiatric unit. It was renamed once again — and with a new name and a new look — continued to serve the one-million residents of the Western Wayne and Downriver communities.

THE PERFECT GIFT FOR PEOPLE WHO WANT TO TRIM MORE THAN THEIR TREE.

Residents have 68 Christmas tree farms to 'chop' at

There are nearly a million reasons why more and more residents are cutting their own Christmas trees each winter.

Michigan is the nation's top producer of plantation-grown Christmas trees, this year, families can choose from 800,000 evergreens at 68 cut-your-own farms.

There are trees for every taste and budget, ranging from $1 for Scotch pine to $50 for Douglas firs, blue spruce or large flocked trees, which are sealed and sprayed with a snowlike coating.

Tree sizes also run the gamut from young evergreens perfect for children's rooms to 40-foot giants for churches and other large buildings.

Many farms this year are using special attractions to lure customers.

On weekends, Santa Claus gives out treats to children at six farms, and there are farm animals to pet, plus hot, fresh apple cider and doughnuts to enjoy around yule log fires at many others.

You can ride a wagon or horse-drawn sleigh at 16 operations or even take part in a live Sunday country music radio show at a farm near Lennon.

But here's some advice for persons cutting their own trees:

— Bring a hand saw. Sixty-one farms lend saws, but they could be in use. Axes are banned.

— Remember that while most pines and Douglas firs hold needles, balsams and spruces drop them, if not properly cared for.

— After choosing a tree, saw close to the ground.

— Bring a rope for tying the tree to the car. Be sure the base is at the car's front.

— Before placing in a stand, angle cut an inch or two off the tree's base to help it absorb water. Fill the stand with water daily.

— Keep trees from open flames and check lights for shorts and bare wires before decorating. Make sure electrical outlets can handle the load.

Westland ponders pay increases for judges

Westland's two District Court judges are each eligible for a $6,000 raise from the City of Westland, but the City Council will have to decide how much, if any, of a raise the judges will get.

District Court judge salaries are paid partly by the state, and partly by the local unit of government. The state's share per judge is currently $27,765, a salary that took effect Dec. 1.

Westland has been paying a $12,500 supplement to each judge's salary. That amount was the maximum supplement allowed until May of this year, when the maximum went to $17,460, and as of Dec. 1, the maximum supplement is

If awarded the full increase in the maximum supplement, it would raise each judge's salary by $6,000, nearly 50 percent higher than the amount they're getting from the city now.

It would be the first raise from the city since 1974, when the $12,500 amount first went into effect as the city's share.

However, the District Court judges have gotten increases steadily from the state over the past several years. On the average, since 1972 those increases average out to about 5.5 percent per year. In November of 1972 District Court judges were paid $20,500 by the state. Now, they make $27,765.

In the future, whenever Circuit Court judges are awarded a raise by the state, District Court judge salaries will go up by a percentage of that increase, and the maximum supplement from the city will go up.

However, the city can choose to give all, some, or even none of the raise.

Discussing the possible wage hike with the City Council recently, Judge Evan Callanan, presiding judge at the 18th District Court, said he is asking for the full $6,000 raise, saying the salary has been inequitable for years since the city's share of the judges' salary hasn't gone up in more than four years.

But Councilman Richard Stempien noted that the council recently held a cap on wage increases at 7 percent for department heads, because of the voluntary wage controls urged by President Carter. He noted that 7 percent of $12,500 would be $875. But Callanan responded that the application of that 7 percent shouldn't apply since it would be the first increase from the city in such a long time.

He did acknowledge that his salary has been going up, however, from the state's portion.

Contacted later, Judge Thomas Smith said he is not going to recommend anything to the council regarding the raise.

"Of course, everyone wants a raise," he laughed. "But I'm not going to make a formal recommendation to the council one way or another."

"We feel we should give them the information on what they are allowed to pay (the maximum supplement), and then the decision is strictly theirs."

A listing from the State Court Administrator's Office showed that in Livonia, Inkster and Wayne, the judges had been awarded the maximum amount when the cap was increased to $17,460 earlier this year.

Smith added that in the tri-county area, most district judges are given the maximum supplement.

The city council discussed the point only briefly at a study session recently and decided to talk about it further at later meetings.

However, with a tight economic forecast, and wage controls being urged throughout the country, it appears quite possible that at least some council members will balk at awarding the full $6,000 raise per judge.

In televised class

Hollywood actors teach poetry

Actor Henry Fonda will help teach poetry during the winter term at Wayne County Community College (WC3), as will Claire Bloom, Ruby Dee, Richard Kiley, Valerie Harper, Will Geer, Cameron Mitchell and Cyril Ritchard.

These famous performers will guest star in the 12-week educational television series, "Anyone for Tennyson?" which will be seen on WTVS (Channel 56) beginning Jan. 22. Wayne County Community College will offer a poetry course for academic credit based upon the television series.

In addition, an ethnic studies course will be offered by the college, based upon a second Channel 56 series, "Ethnic America," which also will be telecast beginning Jan. 22 for 12 weeks. The college had offered the course last summer.

'Y' disco continues

The YWCA of Western Wayne County is countering "Saturday Night Fever" with its own Monday night disco dance for single men and women in their 20s and 30s.

With the interests of single men and women in mind and the realization of the difficulties of meeting others with similar interests, the "Y" is offering an enjoyable and comfortable evening, filled with fun, dance and music by a live band or disco jockey and snacks of wine and cheese, to make the evening complete.

The dances are held at the YWCA, 26279 Michigan Avenue, Inkster. The dances begin at 8:30 p.m. and last to 11:30 p.m. The fee for the dance is $3 per person.

For those who want to learn or polish up on their disco dance steps, disco dance lessons will be offered prior to the dance at 7 p.m. The fee for the lessons are $14 for six sessions, or $2.50 per session.

If you are interested in helping with the dances or need further information, call 561-4110.

"Anyone for Tennyson?" will be telecast, beginning Jan. 22, on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 8 a.m. and repeated from 2 to 2:30 p.m. "Ethnic America" may be viewed Monday through Friday, at 7:30 a.m. The shows will be repeated from 12 midnight to 2:30 a.m.

Both are three-credit courses. Tuition is $14 per credit hour, or $42 per course. An $8 per person registration and student activity fee also is charged.

Course requirements for both series include viewing the TV programs, written assignments, and four discussion sessions. The first discussion-orientation session will be Jan. 10 from 7 to 9 p.m. or Saturday, Jan. 13 from 1 to 3 p.m. in the Greenfield Center Annex, Room 200-A, 8551 Greenfield (south of Joy Road).

Students electing one or both of the TV courses should attend one of the sessions.

Interested persons may register now by mail. Mail registration forms are available at all WC3 instructional centers and at the administrative offices, 4612 Woodward, Detroit.

In-person registration will be held at major WC3 day and evening centers, Jan. 3-6.

Merry
Christmas

In "Anyone for Tennyson?" samplings of some of the best and most popular poetry in the English language will be presented. Instruction centers on the elements of poetic composition to teach the student how to read and appreciate a good poem.

"Ethnic America" is the second airing of the WTVS-produced series on the contributions of many different ethnic groups to American life, both historic and contemporary. Programs in the series will cover a wide range of ethnic groups and their particular problems and accomplishments.

DONALD SPARKS

Pvt. Donald Sparks Jr., whose parents live on Brownstown Square, Romulus, recently completed training as an armor reconnaissance specialist under the One Station Unit Training (OSUT) Program at Ft. Knox, Ky.

OSUT is a 13-week period which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training. Students received instruction in the use of various kinds of weapons, maintenance of armor vehicles, map reading, communications, artillery adjustments, and mines and demolitions.

Sparks entered the Army last August. He is a 1978 graduate of Woodhaven High School, Flat Rock.

Canton's growth rate could make its courtroom a 'money a maker'

As long as Canton Township's police department steers away from the "rinky-dink" cases, the case for a money-making courtroom is strong.

And as long as Canton continues with its chronic population growth, the courtroom should more than pay for itself, said 35th District court Judge Dunbar Davis.

"It's something I can't guarantee, but from my experience, and research, Canton has an excellent chance of making a go of it," Davis said at a special study meeting held recently with the Canton Township Board of Trustees.

Davis said that money probably could be saved by having the facility near the township's police department thereby demanding less of the officers time for court duty.

It would cost the township's taxpayers $18 per case heard in the proposed township hall court facility. In 1977 approximately 17,000 cases from Canton were sent to Plymouth. In 1979 it is estimated that 20,000 cases will be heard, according to office estimates from Davis.

"Canton will lose money if it brings in, say all the dinky cases like no operators license, no registration and those kind of little offenses," Davis said, "because the fines will not generate enough revenue to pay for the $18 per court case fee."

But he said that was not a likely possibility for Canton because its police force usually is involved in offenses such as shoplifting which carries a maximum $100 fine, and drunk driving offenses, in which Davis usually hits the offender with a $255 fine.

Traffic incidents provide the bulk of the casework, he said.

Trustee Gene Daley took exception to the judge's analogy, by stating that as a former Wayne County sheriff he never had to feel pressure to bring in "profitable" tickets.

"Never, never in my 25 years experience as a police officer did I feel pressured into bringing in a lot of unnecessary tickets because a police department had to justify itself. It's wrong," said Daley.

But Davis responded that without any pressure, the police department is currently performing well enough to support the court.

In Plymouth, in 1977, the court facility's net profit was $82,000.

Davis noted that Plymouth exists frugally and that any monies refunded to the city goes right back into the court rooms operating fund.

Judge James Garber, to preside in Canton, has already made the gesture to donate his desk and office furniture from his private law practice to the Canton court as soon as it is revamped.

He's also donated the entire law library of expensive books kept in his office to the township.

The initial capital expenditures to remodel either the third or basement floor is about $10,000. The third floor would cost about $500 less.

Equipment included, the total cost to start-up the facility could run between $20,000 to $30,000 said Treasurer James Donahue.

Canton's share of the case load and its pro-rata share of the court expenses are currently about 40 percent, and could possibly climb to 45 percent within the year, he added.

With an estimated $212,710 to be brought in revenue, and the most conservative projected expenditures at $145,000 to the estimated maximum expenditure at $172,500 — the estimated profit could be from $40,210 to $67,710, according to Donahue's figures.

State proposal urges van pooling

Two proposals of a multiple bill package, designed to encourage business and industry to set up van pools in Michigan, currently are awaiting Gov. William Milliken's signature, after being approved by the Michigan Senate Dec. 5.

Sponsored by Rep. Robert Law (R-Livonia, Westland), the two bills direct the Department of Highways and Transportation to administer ride sharing programs within the state and exempt van pools from regulation by the Public Service Commission. The other bills would establish tax incentives for both employers and employees in van pooling projects, develop insurance for the programs, and other related items.

"Van pooling is an imaginative and fast-growing form of commuter transportation that is a partial solution to gasoline consumption," Law said. "The program costs taxpayers nothing and the concept is sweeping the nation."

"Right here in Michigan the Chrysler Corporation, Michigan Bell, Detroit Edison and the state have initiated small programs that transport about 2,000 employees back and forth to work every day."

Law explained that by exempting van pools from Public Service Commission scrutiny they would remain flexible, and companies, hesitant to start programs out of fear of bureaucratic red tape and over-regulation, would initiate them.

Under the provisions of the second bill, the Department of Highways and Transportation would coordinate van pooling efforts throughout the state among companies that wish to establish them and encourage their employees to use them.

"I have been in communication with the Department of Energy in Washington," Law said, "and I believe that if we remove all institutional obstacles from van pooling, as my legislation attempts to do, there could be 200,000 van pools on our nation's roads by 1985, saving a billion dollars in consumption of gasoline annually and saving van pool users $615 million in gas costs.

"Of course these are national figures, but the impact on Michigan would be higher than average because we are highly industrialized with heavy concentrations of people."

Law said that van pooling can be tailored to individual needs and is more flexible than traditional forms of mass transportation.

"Each van pool would replace about eight to 10 cars on the road during work hours, which would obviously reduce pollution and traffic congestion at the most difficult time," Law said.

"Parking would not be a great problem, so older cities trying to rejuvenate would not have to be overly concerned about creating new parking facilities."

SUFFERING NEEDLESSLY?

Millions are turning to chiropractic because they are recognizing the scientific principles of nature that have made spinal adjustments effective for many conditions where other methods have failed. The chart below shows the lateral view of the spinal column and indicates in section "A" names of the spinal nerves as they branch from the spinal cord and exit through openings between the vertebrae. All tissues, glands and organs supplied with life energy by these nerves are shown in the section marked "B" in the chart. The section marked "C" describes a partial list of the conditions and symptoms that can result when there is an absence of life in the nerves.

'SPINAL NERVE INVOLVEMENT CAUSES MANY CONDITIONS

The spinal chart shown above is directed especially to those people who have tried to regain their health through methods other than chiropractic, and have failed. That failure should not lead to discouragement, but to greater determination to discover the fundamental cause of all disease.

Since the discovery of chiropractic, no one needs to feel that he or she is destined to be sick all their life. Remember, "Where there is life there is hope and he who has hope has everything."

In new increase request

Michigan Bell to hold basic telephone service rates

Michigan Bell today filed a rate proposal that complies with President Carter's current anti-inflation guidelines and would have minimal impact on the average home telephone customer.

As part of its request, the company proposed holding the line on rates for all basic telephone service and dialed long distance callsthrough the first year of the current national effort to limit price and wage increases.

In announcing its request to the Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC), Michigan Bell pointed out that telephone rates have increased only half as much as the Consumer Price Index since 1967, the starting point for measuring the current level of inflation. The last general telephone rate increase was in January 1978, when Michigan Bell was granted a 2.8 percent boost in its revenues.

Although the first phase of Michigan Bell's request states a need for an increase of $142 million, the company said it was asking that only $90 million of its request — about 7.18 percent — be granted during the first year of the President's program. The balance would be considered by the MPSC in the fourth quarter of 1979, following the period covered by the current price guidelines.

Michigan Bell's proposal also included a request that $48 million of the total be authorized next spring on an interim basis to cover higher labor costs.

"We've done everything we can to minimize the need for rate increases," said William C. Ferguson, Executive vice-president. "But costs have been going up so rapidly that a telephone price increase is essential to assure our ability to continue providing top quality service."

Under Michigan Bell's proposal, rates would be held at their present levels for basic service for both residence and business customers, for dialed long distance calls, local message and zone charges, and for WATS through the first year of the current guidelines.

During that time, the company proposed that increases apply only to specialized services such as PBX, key equipment and private line business hookups; residence extensions; miscellaneous items, and installation charges.

In the second phase of its request, the company is asking that the commission keep the case open into the latter half of 1980. By that time, Michigan Bell will incur about $92 million in added labor and depreciation costs that it will seek to recover through increased rates.

"The first phase of our case complies with the current price guidelines. Beyond that, we've identified what our financial needs will be. But, of course, there's no way for us to know what anti-inflation guidelines may exist at that time that could have an effect on our request."

Although the MPSC has authorized an earnings level of 8.86 percent on Michigan Bell's plant and equipment, Ferguson said the company earned only 7.49 percent last year and 7.88 percent through the first 10 months of 1978.

The company's overall request shows a need for an earnings level of 9.81 percent.

Panel checks bottle gripes

Attorney General Frank Kelley has appointed a task force to receive and investigate consumer complaints relating the returnable bottle bill, which took effect Dec. 3.

Kelley said his Consumer Protection Division will receive and investigate complaints on the bill and work with other agencies to help clear up confusion associated with the bill, which bans throw-away bottles and cans and requires deposits on returnables.

"We already have received numerous complaints from people on how the bill is being implemented," Kelley said. "I presume this will be temporary until consumers and merchants become more familiar with the returnable bottle bill."

"But I feel one agency — a sort of task force — should take the responsibility of trying to work out any problems that might arise."

The law, which Michigan voters approved in 1976, bans throw-away beverage containers requiring that they be replaced with cans and/or bottles, carrying deposits.

The law specified duties and rights for both consumers and merchants, Kelley noted.

Merchants who sell

take-out beverages for example, can:

— Refuse to redeem broken, unusable bottles.

— Refuse to redeem bottles or cans from brands which are not carried by the store.

— Refuse to redeem cans or bottles which are not labeled, stamped or embossed with words indicating that the bottle or can is a Michigan returnable.

Merchants who sell take-out beverages must accept damaged, scratched or dented cans and bottles without the caps.

Also under the law, consumers can:

— Return bottles or cans to any store which handles that brand. They are not required to return them to the store from which they were purchased.

— Demand cash, not merchandise, in return for cans and bottles.

— Return cans or bottles individually in boxes, cartons or bags.

People subjected to unusual or excessive requirements for returning cans or bottles can file a complaint with the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division at 670 Law Building, Lansing 48913. A complaint also can be filed by calling the Attorney General's Office at (517) 373-1110.

Tree lights raise potential for fire

Although electrical candles have replaced candles on the Christmas tree, there still is fire potential, so tree trimmers should thoroughly check strings of lights before decorating a tree.

Some of the things to look for are damaged sockets, loose prongs in the plug, exposed wires and loose bulbs. After a safety check, the lights should be plugged in for 10-15 minutes, and watch for smoking or melting.

The smaller the lights, the cooler they will be. For that reason, tree decorators might want to use the miniature lights, as long as they carry the UL approval label. For the most energy efficiency, miniature lights that blink rate high.

Try to keep the bulb surface away from contact with needles. If the light sockets have clips, use them to keep the lamp away from needle contact as a further precaution against making the needles tinder dry.

To avoid knocking the tree over when plugging in lights, use an extension cord to reach a more accessible outlet.

And don't plug too many strings of lights together. Three strings should be the maximum.

For metallic trees, use lighting off the tree, because most can transmit electrical shock, if the insulation is faulty.

From fire station site

Canton relocates courtroom in Township Hall

They've gone south, slightly to the west and at least eight-and-a-half feet under ground-level in their search for a courtroom in Canton Township.

Canton officials, by an unanimous vote recently, agreed to relocate the unconstructed district courthouse facility from the original proposed site at the fire station just north of Cherry Hill Road, to the new administration hall just south of Proctor Road.

By a 6-1 vote, board members agreed to utilize the basement of the administration hall rather than the third floor which had been considered.

Dissent came from Trustee Robert Greenstein who said that the third floor was more a dignified, quite and more respectful location for a court than the basement.

But the general public safety appeared to be the deciding factor in opting for the lower level, which according to Treasurer James Donahue and Trustee Carol Bodeniller is more capable of maintaining the necessary security.

Donahue said that the basement site would keep the employees and general public segregated from those who must frequent the court on a compulsory basis, and may not necessarily be "safe enough" to be exposed to the public.

Another factor involved in the decision was that if a library millage does eventually pass in Canton, the third floor would be more ideal than the basement for books.

Clerk John Flodin said that because only about five percent of the public will be utilizing the court — and of that percentage "all" are usually considered to be suspected criminals — that the "cream of the crop" third floor should be secured for the non-criminals.

"I don't mean to demean the persons integrity who has to appear in court, but the nicer part of the building should be saved for those who are not in trouble with the law," said Flodin.

Hoping to dispell fears that criminals might be leaping out in search of innocent bystanders, Greenstein said that in his 15 years experience in district courts, that not once has he witnessed a violent case.

He said that at the district court, people are simply arraigned and examined. It is at the Circuit Court level where the fines and sentencing are given, he said.

"I strongly object to people implying that freaks will be running around and that oh my god we've got to protect ourselves from them," Greenstein said, "because for the most part the people who go to district court are your neighbors who've run stops signs or committed minor traffic violations."

He also argued that fellow board members, much like himself, pledged to the citizenry that they would hold back on unnecessary spending, the basement site was 50-percent more costly than the third floor site.

"We promised to stop spending money like it wasn't our own, and by this action we're throwing money away in the dumpster," he said.

A few months back when the township was scheduling the courthouse to be at the fire station, the argument was that the basement lacked the proper security needed to segregate prisoners from the general public.

Today the basement is now considered the most secure of all sites, said officials.

Donahue said that "unfortunately," because of the change in plans, the township might have to expend $11,000 for the initial remodeling work completed at the fire hall, with "nothing in return."

Earlier it was expected that to remodel either the third or lower levels at the new hall would take about 3 to five weeks.

But officials have learned that it will take at least a few months. In the interim the main floor's meeting hall will be used to conduct courtroom business, said officials.

The court will convene on Jan. 15, official added.

Hard at work

Mt. Pleasant Elementary School's Learning Center staff recently invited parents to a "Make it, Take It" Workshop to develop educational games for their children. Parents participating in the Dec. 8 program were assisted in at least one game for their "scholars", with the idea behind it being the re-inforcement of various

VA pensioners must file '78 annual income report

Elderly pensioners who this year must complete a Veterans Administration (VA) annual income report may find they qualify for higher pensions, according to VA officials.

The agency is taking extra steps to provide any assistance these older veterans and surviving spouses may need in completing the questionnaire, VA chief Max Cleland said. "We have asked all major national veterans organizations to help us assist pensioners age 72 and older in filling out the income form and, of course, all our local VA offices are staffed with benefits counselors who are standing by to provide any assistance requested," Cleland added.

Because VA pensions for disabilities not related to military service are based on income, pension recipients must report the amount of their income from other sources to VA annually.

Exempted from the report in the past were veterans age 72 and over who had been on the pension rolls during two consecutive calendar years. Their exemptions meant that they did not have to file a full report, but the law required them to report any material changes in income.

But starting Jan. 1, the over-72 group — about 813,000 pensioners — must complete the full VA income questionnaire annually.

A new law makes the report necessary, Cleland said. Among other changes effective Jan. 1, it raises the amount a pensioner may receive from other sources and still qualify for a pension.

"We have found through a survey," VA reported, "that some veterans were not taking advantage of certain allowable exemptions from income that might qualify them for higher pensions. Some others apparently did not understand that they were obligated to report changes in income."

Still another reason for the new reporting requirement is that the law permits those already on pension rolls to choose between the current and new systems of computing pensions.

Those pensioners who choose to continue under the current system will keep the rate of pension established as of Dec. 31, 1978, provided they qualify under the new higher income ceilings — $5,430 for a veteran with dependents and $4,038 for a single veteran. Fluctuations in income below these levels will not affect pensions. They also will be permitted to deduct unusual medical expenses from income, and some income and assets of the veteran's spouse need not be counted.

The new system effective Jan. 1, 1979, considers both husband's and wife's income in determining pension eligibility.

It is most important, VA officials emphasized, that older veterans understand that they cannot receive pensions in 1979 unless the completed questionnaire on income is returned.

Follow these yuletide tips

Fall and Winter mean holidays and holidays mean parties, decorations and Christmas trees. To keep your holidays joyous, the Insurance Information Institute offers these fire safety tips:

- Keep the tree away from fireplaces, radiators and heaters. Place it in a water stand and water it daily.
- Use only flameproof decorations.
- Don't set up electric trains or similar equipment around or near the tree.
- Check sockets and wires of tree lights to see that they are in good condition.

—Place the tree so that its lights can be turned on and off from a switch located away from the tree.

—Don't leave tree lights burning while away from home.

—Don't overload electrical outlets.

—When putting up decorations and lights, use a balanced ladder—never a box, bench or chair.

—Teach your children the importance of observing these safety precautions.

For State Wayne Theater

'King of the Road' opens new chapter

By GAIL SNIBBLE
Special to The Enterprise-Roman

Once it was "Cinderella" and "Prince Charming", and we know the story did not end happily-ever-after for the State Wayne Theater in Wayne.

But two weeks ago, "King of the Road" Roger Miller began another chapter for the theater.

Miller was the first performer in an attempt by Bob Stottlemeyer to turn the theater into a sound-stage for concerts and plays.

And the audience, although older, was every bit as excited and noisily appreciative of the country singer as the kids had been at the Saturday matinees.

Miller's appearance last Saturday night came a scant three weeks after plans to re-open the theater were announced. There wasn't much time for publicity, and the house was only about three fourths full for the single performance. Stottlemeyer, who has leased the theater for the new venture, set attendance between 800 and 825 people.

Moreover, the theater marquee had seemed to shrug off the importance of Miller's appearance. Blandly-spaced letters merely spelled "Grand Opening Dec. 9, Roger Miller Show," as if it didn't care if anyone looked, or understood, or not.

"The marquee didn't look right, did it?" agreed Miller himself after the show. "It looked like it was just a film to be run," though he accepted it good naturedly.

Perhaps it was because Miller and those who saw the show all had a terrific time. Miller, both on stage and afterwards, said we in Wayne were one of the most responsive audiences he'd ever played to.

"I could've worked all night!"

I've been a Roger Miller fan for many years. But not being much of a TV talk show tuner, my acquaintance was solely through his records. There was nothing like the brilliantly wacky lyrics and spelled-out yodels of his early songs to get me through my housework. Evenings I'd listen to his quiet love songs and that poignant under current of crying. I could feel in his voice.

So I admit I'd expected to see a lonely guy wandering around the stage kind of nervously poking fun at himself between songs. I was completely unprepared for the Roger Miller Show.

"I have this wonderful gift," he told us. He felt it was not his music, but "being able to stand up here and run my mouth and be entertaining."

That's exactly what he did! He walked on stage zanily asking: "Was that Roger Miller (about Deano Day from CKLW who introduced him)?" He fielded a few comments from the audience, casually asking how we liked his new moustache ("kinda like crabgrass, it gets away from you").

Even his first song was more a comic than musical number, a story about "parachuting out of Uncle Harvey's airplane". It came complete with an airplane-motor version of his trademark yodel-ding. His singing slid back out into some choice chatter about chicken houses and other topics, humorously recalling his rural Oklahoma upbringing.

As he said later: "If you're going to play the music, get in tune (with the audience)." He claimed to have no set dialogue or format, and in fact once asked his wife, who sat on stage quietly with the band and sang occasional backup, what story he might tell next.

Miller did go on to sing a lot of songs, but he did not attempt to immerse himself into the meaning of each one. Aware of the audience's familiarity with his old songs, he instead showed he could still have fun with them.

Perhaps I was little disappointed when he sang only the chorus of "Little Green Apples", one of my favorites, and when "King of the Road" turned into a loud band-slam, which celebrated the song as a big hit and forgot what it had been about.

But this show was a party, and there was a man and a mind on that stage, and the audience and I loved every minute of it!

One surprise for me and many fans was that Roger Miller is a terrific hoe-down fiddler. Before becoming famous, he played fiddle for Minnie Pearl. He and the band treated us to a great locomotive chase in music, Miller's fiddle strings singing like a train whistle as the guitars and drums charged down the track.

Miller took his two-minute break right on stage, with a cigarette for him and more chatter for us. He did perfect impressions of a heartbeat and rocks plunking, laughing with the audience all the way.

I might also note that Miller used an occasional cuss word in the spirit and enthusiasm of his show, this was not frequent or something he depended on for attention. He didn't need to depend on shock or titillation to keep his audience having fun.

Near the end of the show, Miller became more serious and sang some newer songs, which were less homespun, more dramatic and almost sad. I couldn't help contrast his song on "Dreams," which declared that life offered "no easy way," with his long-ago laughing confidence that "you can be happy if you've a mind to" — although "you can't rollerskate in a buffalo herd."

These newer songs contained his usual creative phrase twists, but were markedly more somber in tone than anything I'd heard from Miller before.

Miller concluded his show with a song called "Old Friends," noting that during this evening he'd come to feel that way about this audience here in Wayne. ("Beverly Hills has no idea what I'm about," he said later.) Afterwards he leaned over the stage, shaking hands and signing autographs.

I was able to have a brief meeting with Roger Miller after the show in the small dressing-sitting room at the theater. I'm afraid I was rather nervous and stage-struck and can truthfully say that Roger and his wife Mary put me at ease with their quiet offstage charm and lack of affection. There wasn't time for the many questions I'd wanted to ask, but he answered a lot of them when he told me that he'd never consciously worked on special themes for styles in his songs.

"I just think of things in rhyme," he said. "I'm no Billy Graham, but God does the writing."

Thanks, Mr. Stottlemeyer. The Roger Miller Show was a grand beginning for your new entertainment venture in Wayne.

Time to pause and reflect

Once again, as the Christmas season is upon us, we pause and reflect on our lives, our families and our communities.

For most of us, that reflection provides a happy realization that while things never seem to be as good as they could be, they are never as bad either.

While volumes have been written on the subject of man's once-a-year experiment with peace and goodwill, perhaps the subject should not be analyzed too closely lest mankind be deprived of even this brief interlude.

Our complex society has forced most of us to expend our energies in the pursuit of staying even. We seem to have lost that feeling of belonging which is characteristic of any group or organization on the move.

Much like the world traveler who upon his return from foreign lands and languages, greets each and every fellow American like his brother. A sense of belonging. A feeling that one has come home and is welcomed by his family.

More than anything else, that feeling of belonging typifies the brief interlude in our daily struggles which Christmas had come to represent.

As we sit back and savor the atmosphere created by this most favorite season, perhaps we should also reflect on the reason for its but once-a-year visit.

Perhaps upon reflection, we will realize that to feel wanted and needed and belonging, we must make others feel the same. But the very best part is that the price for making others feel good is so very low, and the returns so very high.

At a time when it is no longer 'cool' to talk about principle, pride or fair play, is it any wonder that we can muster the spirit only once a year?

There is no question that the power to affect this change is within our reach.

The only question is, whether we are big enough to reach it if we try.

China decision good, conditions bad

The announcement Saturday that the U.S. was breaking diplomatic ties with Taiwan and establishing relations with mainland China has caught most observers by surprise, Taiwan included.

While the principals involved in the decision announced last week had been engaged in serious discussion for the past several months, it did not appear likely that the U.S. would make such a decision prior to concluding the current Salt negotiations with Russia. But Carter, once again, doing the unexpected, decided that the time was right for the latest American give-away.

Apparently Carter felt that he had played all of his cards in the game with the Chinese Communists. Sensing an opportunity to close the deal that would most certainly bring the praise of our enemies and allies alike, the president made the announcement that he had played his final card. And that last card was Taiwan.

Obviously it is not now possible to assess the final outcome of that move to gamble away another friend of the U.S., but we do know that any advantage is speculative only, while the price paid was in hard cash.

At time when the U.S. is suffering from a deficiency of friends, Carter has dealt away one of the few remaining.

Relying on communist assurances that they will not attempt to resolve the issue of Taiwan by force, the president has opened the door to those folks who blew our troops out of Korea, opened the door of U.S. technology that could ultimately be responsible for the creation of a military power unequalled in history.

We realize that every bold move toward progress carries with it some element of risk, but unfortunately, at this point in time, we played our last card and got nothing for it.

Recently, some members of the Taiwan Defense Department commented on the possibility of the U.S. recognizing mainland China and breaking ties with their island.

While the prospect of that happening appeared slim, it was their feeling that the U.S., for the first time in history, has found itself in an excellent diplomatic position relative to the eastern powers.

Using diplomatic recognition as the U.S. 'China Card' in the game of diplomacy, we had been able to effectively play Russian interests against the Chinese for our benefit.

Taiwan's leaders did not feel that we would be so anxious to play that card, since once played, it was gone.

Saturday, Taiwan was surprised. Saturday was a surprise to almost everyone but those who have become accustomed to our bungling foreign policy.

We think the timing was bad at best in this agreement to establish diplomatic relations with mainland China. But worse, we feel that buckling to the demands of the communists, to cut our ties with Taiwan, has shown the world our lack of any commitment to support our friends when it is not profitable to do so.

We hope that history proves us wrong. We hope this move by Carter will be looked upon by our historians as the beginning of a new era in human history.

But it is extremely fortunate that the Chinese did not demand that we break diplomatic relations with Canada.

Such a move would have most certainly destroyed the National Hockey League. And we don't need any cards to play that game.

Why an "X" rated Christmas

Who took Christ out of Christmas?

For many years, since I first observed the use of Xmas as an abbreviation for Christmas, I have wondered about the Madison Avenue type who must have been responsible for this innovation.

Had I met him, I wouldn't have liked him.

It is not in the least bit difficult for someone in the newspaper business to understand the motive for the wide-spread use of this abbreviated form. Christmas is after all, a long word that is best not hyphenated. But still, it rings hollow to see Christ removed from the celebration of his own birthday.

While critics will be quick to comment that 'X' is a recognized symbol for Christ, and therefore its use is proper, I still feel that the abbreviated form of Christmas has been encouraged solely to make life more convenient for mankind. Color me strange, but I don't like it and never have.

Now it could, of course, be argued that the substitution of 'X' for Christ in Christmas has saved the world thousands of gallons of paint, since that substitution reduces a nine character word to four.

It could also be argued that the substitution preserves our natural resources, and preserving natural resources is a good thing. But those gallons of paint and the natural resources were a gift to the world from Christ's father, and most fathers would prefer that their children's names be properly spelled.

From the standpoint of creativity alone the substitution makes little sense.

Anyone can make an 'X', but it requires the services of an artist to scroll a good looking Christmas.

Walt Disney once said, "I removed one finger on each of Mickey Mouse's hands, and over his lifetime I saved thousands of dollars in ink."

But Christ is not Mickey Mouse. Christ does not exist simply for the convenience of mankind.

In my years on this planet I have developed only a few very strong opinions. But I feel those opinions are valid.

I don't like to see people sneak out of church before the services are over. I don't like corrupt politicians who have violated their oath of office and the public trust. I don't like people who will lie or only tell you what they think you want to

Holiday observations

In the three years it has been my good fortune to write this weekly column, I've always tried to save the Christmas week edition to offer some personal observations on what the holiday means to me and what I feel it ought to mean to most of us.

During this week, it seems that all of us begin to act just a little more civil toward one another; we offer expressions of holiday cheer and become more tolerant.

That's too bad. Not too bad that we show civility, but too bad that we seem only to be willing to act that way during one week of the year.

It's a bit upsetting, but I'm convinced that we've all been conditioned to look at Christmas as an 'I Want' season. It appears that we have failed completely to make the distinction between what we want and what we really need.

And what do we need? Basically, all we need is food, clothing, and shelter from the elements. There's one more need, which in my judgment is the prime need: I'm talking about the need for genuine friendship.

However, one must understand that friendship is a reciprocal entity. If you want friends, then obviously you must be prepared to make the necessary sacrifices which show that you are willing first to be a friend.

Think about the past year. How many times have you taken a person's hand, or given someone a hug, and did it in honest friendship? How many times have you taken the time to tell a person just how much he or she means to you? And I prefer to think that the ancient message of Christmas is principally a message of friendship.

No doubt there are those who would be distressed at what I've just written; and that's fine, because we all have to think things out for ourselves.

Christmas is, of course, the day selected to celebrate the nativity of Jesus Christ — in the Eastern Orthodox Church, January 6 rather than December 25 is the celebration day.

To most, Christ was the Man-God delivered to Earth to teach the faith and show man how to atone for his errant ways. Christ's whole message, I think, was a message of love and friendship. And certainly you don't have to be a hear. And I don't like people who would abbreviate Christmas as Xmas.

All of the aforementioned offenders I have lumped into one pile, and avoid when possible.

Because: — It is easier to leave church early than to sit and listen to a sermon addressing your faults.

— It is easier for an elected official to think first about himself and corrupt his office.

— It is easier for someone to tell you what they may think you want to hear because there is less risk of them learning something.

— And it is easier to substitute Xmas for Christmas because of the five fewer characters.

But only rarely is the easy way the best way, and in my opinion, it is never the best way relative to the examples listed.

At this point in time, it is extremely unlikely that I will change.

As a matter of fact, next year at this time, I may even have added to my list of strong opinions. But regardless of the inconvenience, the waste of natural resources, and all those characters.

"I'll still take Christmas anytime."

member of any Christian church to understand that message.

War, murder, rape, larceny, deviousness, and the like are all the antithesis of friendship and love and are precisely the things Christ suggested that man eliminate from his life style. The message, then, is universal.

A wag once said that we have some 300,000 laws all designed to enforce ten commandments. Perhaps there's a lot of truth to that even if it was said tongue in cheek.

Certainly I don't have the credentials to mount a pulpit and preach the elements of a Christian faith; nor do I intend to assume such a role.

But I do think it would be a good idea for you to go up to a stranger (and that stranger might even be some one with whom you've worked all year!) and say 'Merry Christmas' and mean it.

I just can't help but wonder what this world might be like if more people would take the time to extend to others the priceless gift of friendship.

To all of you who through this past year have communicated with me in one way or another, I extend a sincere hand of friendship. Happy Holidays everyone.

Funerals psychologically important

By GEORGE R. PLAGENZ

There is a drive-in funeral home in Atlanta. Will shop-by-phone funerals be next?

Already available are do-it-yourself coffin kits ($15 to $24). You assemble your own pine or ash coffin and save it until you die.

In the meantime, says Rev. William Wendt, Episcopal priest and president of the St. Francis Burial Society in Washington, D.C., you can use the coffin as a blanket chest or wine closet.

The Thornton Mortuary in Atlanta has been providing drive-in funeral viewing since 1974. If the family requests it, the funeral home will place the open casket in a glassed-in bay window.

Friends can drive up the U-shaped driveway, view the body and sign a register that comes out at them in one of those retractable drawers — like the ones you put your bank book and deposit slips in at the drive-in bank.

"We may use the drive-in facility only a few times a year," says a mortuary spokesman, "usually when many of the friends of the deceased are elderly or invalided and the family feels that this would make it more convenient for them."

But if we ever come to have shop-by-phone funerals, it would be for other reasons. New recommendations by the Federal Trade Commission concerning funeral home operations include a provision that undertakers must quote prices over the phone when asked) on such things as caskets, vaults and the cost of a funeral.

Not only do many bereaved people dislike having to go into the casket display room (which is eerie and often clammy cold) to pick out a coffin, but the FTC charges that some undertakers find that this is a psychologically advantageous moment to sell a bereaved person a more expensive casket than he had in mind to buy.

Proposed FTC rules would require undertakers to furnish prospective customers with printed price lists for caskets and an itemized accounting of other services and merchandise.

They would also have to give these prices over the phone so that clients could "comparison shop" before deciding on a funeral home.

Once a customer has picked out an undertaker, he would then be allowed to tell him what price casket he wants without having to go into the display room to hear a sales talk.

Despite the high cost of funerals and criticism of the funeral industry, the majority of people still feel that funerals — and the one- or two-day waiting period between death and burial — are psychologically important to help people through their grief.

"Although Jessica Mitford has enlightened us about the garishness of the American way of death," writes Sue Garson in The Humanist magazine, "the alternatives are hardly viable."

Many behaviorists agree, she says, that funerals, no matter how extravagant or barbaric, are extremely purposeful to the survivors.

"There is a need," writes Ms. Garson, "to perform a deed of some sort so that survivors can feel a part of the life-death cycle and begin the letting-go process naturally."

Rabbi Daniel Silver of The Temple in Cleveland suggests another reason why funerals are important.

"I am troubled," he says, "by the lack of a physical and tangible symbol — the coffin — at a cremation service and by the lack of a burial place."

We are "visually oriented people," Rabbi Silver observes, and "our emotions need places on which they can focus. There are times after a death in the family when we need to go to — actually be with — our departed loved ones. We need a special place where we can be with our memories."

He tells the story of a young physician who once came to his office.

"His wife had died the week before after a long illness," the rabbi relates. "They had talked about death, and, being modern, had decided it should be treated without ritual."

She had been cremated, and the doctor had gone back to work the same day.

"Now a week later," says Rabbi Silver, "he couldn't live with himself."

Criminal code revisions

By EDWARD E. MAHALAK
State Representative
38th District

There has been legislative action on a number of bills involving various types of criminal acts, including arson and computer fraud.

Arson is one of the fastest growing crimes in Michigan.

In this State in 1976, there were almost 9,000 confirmed acts of arson, resulting in a property loss of $14.7 million. There were, in the same year, more than 8,000 fires suspected to be arson, but not proven as such.

The conviction of arsonists has been difficult. Insurance companies sometimes suspect arson, but do not have the investigative capacity to prove it. Information from the claims files of insurance companies would be of considerable assistance to police or fire department investigators, but insurance companies often are reluctant to provide this information because of fear of prosecution or civil lawsuits by someone who considers himself injured or defamed by release of the information.

Two bills recently signed into law will help to crack down on arson.

One of them creates an arson strike force within the State Fire Marshal Division of the State Police. The personnel of the force would be assigned by the Director of the State Police and would be authorized to investigate every case involving a conspiracy to commit arson, a fire set to defraud, or any other act of arson.

It is presently difficult to accurately estimate the extent of arson in the State because many fires, which suspicious in origin, are not proven to be cases of arson.

The arson squad in Detroit, a 31-person unit, investigated 2,000 fires of suspicious origin over a recent two-year period and obtained 270 convictions. Yet the squad estimates that only a small fraction of the arsons in Detroit are thoroughly investigated. Detroit is considered to have a very effective arson squad, but the arson problem is by no means confined to that city.

In creating the State Police arson strike force, it was felt that the State Police is the crime prevention unit best suited to deal with the arson problem on a statewide basis.

The present State Police arson unit is composed of only 12 persons, which prevents it from being organized as an aggressive unit. The new law is directed toward the hiring of 20 more persons and the purchase of additional automobiles and equipment.

In addition to giving the State Police a more effective role in arson investigation, the law creates a central authority which will be able to pool information, technology and skills and assist local arson investigators.

The second new law would require insurance companies or their agents to release information on request to the State Fire Marshal, local fire chiefs, or fire officials designated by the Fire Marshal. Such information could include policies and applications for policies, premium payment records, history of previous claims, and the results of company loss investigations.

If an insurance company suspects arson as the cause of a loss it would be required to report that suspicion to the Fire Marshal and furnish what information it has.

In the absence of fraud or malice, an insurance company or its representative would be immune to criminal prosecution or civil action for supplying information required by the new law.

Persons receiving information would have to hold that information in confidence, but they could be required to testify on the information in any case in which a policyholder seeks recovery from a fire loss.

Evidence is difficult to gather in arson investigations because physical evidence is often consumed in the fire. It is possible that a policyholder's dealings with an insurance company may constitute an incriminating pattern that can at least aid investigators in focusing their investigations.

The new law clears the way for full cooperation between insurance companies and arson investigators by freeing the companies from the threat of civil actions for defamation, libel or an invasion of privacy.

A bill approved by the House and sent to the Senate deals with an entirely different type of crime, and one which could become much more common - that of computer fraud.

The bill would set a sentence of up to 10 years in prison and a fine of as much as $5,000 for persons convicted of tampering with computers for their personal gain.

A person would be prohibited by law from gaining access to a computer, a computer system or network with the idea of devising a scheme to defraud to obtain money, property or services falsely. The bill also prohibits a person from intentionally altering, damaging or destroying a computer or computer program.

There are presently no laws which specifically deal with computer fraud itself. The legislation is considered necessary because of the greater use of electronic fund transfer systems.

The measure is fashioned after a federal bill pending in the U. S. Senate.

There is evidence that computer fraud is becoming the most common of white collar crimes. While there is evidence that computer fraud costs an estimated $100 million a year, only one out of 10 computer frauds are being discovered, often accidentally.

Reflections

What price reality?

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

Always at Christmastime I get this yen to walk through the woods, snow dripping from my boot tops, and cut my own Christmas tree.

I used to have visions of the tree toppling from my mighty axe, and they with a great heave-ho the entire family grabbing the trunk and singing Christmas Carols, we bring it home where we all sit around a blazing fire and drink hot mugs of something and make merry.

Naturally my husband doesn't share this dream. He just looks out of the window and mutters, "you nuts or something?"

The other day he had just built a big fire, got out his thick woolie socks and settled down for another Sunday, hating winter, when the door burst open and our oldest came rushing in, dragging her husband with a saw in his hand.

"Come on everyone," she shouted. "We're going out in the country and cut our own Christmas trees."

"Not me," her father mumbled, wriggling his toes in their woolies.

"Yes you are, Pop," and she turned him to butter with her smile.

Pouring him into his winterized long johns the whole family pushed him into the car, mumbling and grumbling about how much he hated winter. His son-in-law tucked a pillow under his head, and propped his feet under the heater while the rest of us climbed in wherever there was an empty spot.

Naturally, there weren't any Christmas Tree farms close to home. The nearest one, the kids said, was some 70 miles away. Only it proved to be more like 100 especially after we took a wrong turn off the expressway and found ourselves hub-cap deep in mud.

A couple of hours later we found a little shack with the Christmas Tree farm's name plastered all over, so that we knew we had reached our destination.

In front stood a weary tractor with a wagon and wet straw on which we all clambered, except grandpa who vowed that no one would ever catch him on that thing, and he slugged back to the car where he put his feet up against the heater, and rested his head on the pillow.

The rest of us crawled up on the wagon, sliding around on the wet straw and the weary old tractor chug-a-lugged down the sloppy trail.

"There's 80 acres of trees," the farmer said as he came to a stop and we slid off the wagon, looking like round straw-men, on the damp side.

It started out a lot of fun as we plunged into the woods examining each tree for THE tree. "Here's a tree," someone would shriek.

"Ugh," someone else would gulp.

"Grandma, Mike just fell in that mudhole," one of the little kids yelled, and we would all turn back to pull out the kid.

"Where's Jason?" someone else cried, and off we would go stomping down the muddy ruts until at last we would find our little boy, eyes and nose full of mud and toes freezing in wet boots.

There wasn't a tree in that whole 80 acres that fit everyone's theory on how a Christmas tree should look.

Back to town we went, soggy and tired and spiritless. Stopping at Ernie's Christmas Tree Lot, just four blocks from home, grandpa got out and found the perfect tree.

By RICHARD L. LESHNER

It had to happen sooner or later. The Federal Government is spending an estimated $5 million to save an endangered fish... which eats two other endangered fish. The Colorado Squawfish doesn't discriminate — it eats practically anything. But among its favorite dishes are the "endangered" Bonytail Chub and the "threatened" Razorback Sucker (where do they get these names?). The squawfish was once considered such a nuisance that governments were paying to get rid of it. Now we're paying to save it. But, why is it OK for the squawfish to eliminate the Bonytail Chub and not OK for homo sapiens to eliminate the squawfish?

With A Dash Of Bitters...

The Consumer Product Safety Commission insists that auto battery manufacturers attach a label to their products warning us not to drink the battery fluid. Extra cost to consumers: $5 million. I'll bet you weren't planning to drink it anyway.

Is It A Better One?

If you get the urge to build a federal mousetrap, the official specifications cover 700 pages and weigh more than three pounds.

Say Hello To Mickey

Agents provocateurs for the General Accounting Office succeeded in adding 27 fictitious characters to the payroll of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, says Human Events. Among them was Donald Duck, at $99,000 a year. The GAO watchdogs were trying to prove a point. They did.

Physician, Heal Thyself

Memo to President Carter: If you really want to cut hospital costs, you might consider eliminating a few of the 164 federal regulatory agencies with jurisdiction over them. The hospitals are spending $35 per patient just to fill out all the forms. Then there are those big boosts in the minimum wage...

You Pay, The Feds Spend...

$97,000 for a report on "The Peruvian Brothel as Sexual Dispensary and Social Arena."

$113,000 to learn that mothers don't enjoy ironing children's clothes.

$150,000 to develop a hot sauce to spray on sheep so the coyotes won't like 'em.

Physician Heal Thyself, II

Among other things, the federal Food and Drug Administration sets and enforces standards for private laboratories. But many of its own labs are in such sad shape they wouldn't pass an FDA inspection, reports U.S. News. Wouldn't pass an OSHA inspection, either.

'As Ye Sow...

Plowing a field raises dust, as any farmer knows.

Dust is called "particulate matter," environmental study shows.

Particulate matter's bad for us, or so the theory goes.

Thus some bewildered farmers were told,

by a federal official who made so bold,

"To reduce the dust you should pave the field, or as much thereof as will not cut the yield."

Prep cage tourney on holiday menu

Glenn is favored to win Western Wayne tourney title

BY TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

While most of us will be resting up and enjoying the Christmas Holidays, an elite group of young athletes and their coaches will put their unique talents to work in hopes of winning Christmas Basketball Tournament titles.

One of the major tournaments in this area will be staged at Wayne Memorial where the host will attempt to recapture some of its lost prestige at the expense of Cherry Hill and either Belleville or Westland John Glenn.

The four teams are scheduled to shoot it out during the two-day tournament which will get underway at 6 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 27 and conclude on Thursday, Dec. 28.

Three of the four coaches involved feel that Glenn, with a sparkling 5-1 over-all record, is the team to beat.

"Looking over the teams involved," said rookie Wayne Coach Steve Schwartz, "I would have to single out Glenn as the team to beat. They have already defeated Cherry Hill and have looked impressive all year long."

Schwartz also noted that "the tournament is a crucial one for us as well."

"It's important because we're going to have to turn ourselves around to get ready for the second part of the season," Schwartz continued. "We lost a heartbreaker to Taylor Center, then came back against Fordson and played without intensity. We have to recapture some of that in this tournament and this tournament should give us some incentive, especially since we're playing at home."

Wayne clashes with Cherry Hill on the first night at 8 p.m., after Glenn tests the defending champ, Belleville, in a 6 p.m. opener.

Belleville Coach Tom Niemi sees the tournament "as a real competitive one."

"It would appear off of their record that John Glenn is favored," Coach Niemi said. "They have an exceptionally fine leader in senior guard Daran Armstrong and, to beat them, we're going to have to be able to board with them."

Meanwhile, Romulus, which has won four of its five starts, (the Eagles' lone setback was by one point to Flint Beecher) will head for

Ann Arbor Huron on Dec. 29 to take on Royal Oak Shrine in the first of two holiday games scheduled at Huron High. The first game is slated for 6 p.m., while the nightcap at 7:30 p.m., pits the host against Bishop Borgess.

"It is a tough tournament," stressed Romulus coach Rod Hanna, "and it'll give our players an opportunity to play against some of the finer teams in the state."

The championship round at Huron will be held on December 30 with the consolation game beginning at 6 and the championship at 8 p.m.

There is "no championship format" this year at the tournament scheduled for Livonia Churchill. Instead, the two Plymouth schools - Canton and Salem - will challenge two Livonia schools - Churchill and Stevenson.

The tournament got underway Tuesday with Churchill and Salem meeting in the opening game and Canton taking on Stevenson in the nightcap.

The "finals" are scheduled for Dec. 21 with Salem and Canton in the opener at 7 p.m. and the two Livonia teams bringing down the curtains at 8:30 p.m.

New rules, new format, new year

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

Before I forget, folks, "Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year."

Now down to business.

Romulus High has come up with an admirable new philosophy to govern its young athletes - an athlete must maintain a "C" average in academics in order to be eligible to compete during that week in his - or her - particular sport.

"We're interested in the over-all person and not just athletics," said basketball coach Rod Hanna, "and this is an attempt to upgrade the athletes' academically and point out to him - and her - that the school is a vehicle to learn and not just for athletics."

"I know there are a lot of pros and cons about the new rule," Hanna added, "but grades are important."

Can't knock that - it's like coming out against motherhood, apple pie and ice cream.

But this perpetual skeptic can't buy what Romulus is selling.

You mean to tell me if they had a Johnny Long caliber of a player in Romulus' lineup today he'd be benched because he didn't carry a "C" average for the week?

Who's kidding who - or is it whom?

The kid who is really going to get hurt with "this new approach" - is the "average athlete" who isn't the standout but made the team on sheer guts. If his marks should falter, then he would be made an example out of.

I've yet to see the real outstanding prep athlete benched because of faltering grades and I don't like to even talk about how many years I have been around the sports scene.

Last year they renamed the Wayne Wrestling Invitational and called it the Ott Invitational.

I found out why on Sunday when Wayne's sophomore mat Coach John Wood introduced me to one of the four Ott brothers.

Wally Ott, who wrestled for Wayne in 1963 and finished second in the state at 127, has taken over the coaching responsibilities at Schoolcraft College and is rounding up local talent.

"All four of us - Dennis, Rod, Jerry and myself - were involved in the wrestling program at Wayne and I can say that it really helped us out a lot," reminisced Wally. "We feel it an honor to have such a prestigious tournament named after our family."

Coach Wood pointed out that "the reason why the invitational has been renamed to honor the Otts is because the Otts brought wrestling to prominence in Wayne."

"I feel they had the most influence, along with former coach Don Haney, in making Wayne High a school noted for its excellent wrestling program and wrestlers."

Rodney Ott probably gained the most recognition among the four brothers. Rod went undefeated in his senior year and won the Class A state championship at 157.

Coach Haney, who retired last year as head coach, inaugurated the wrestling program at Wayne High in 1957. He was succeeded by Norm Boyea who later gave way to Ray Rafford. Haney came back to coach for a few years after Rafford and guided the Zebras to a state championship before handing over the reins to one of his proteges, Wood.

Preceding the finals for the Ott Invitation, which is scheduled for Saturday evening, Wood said they will also be honoring former Wayne wrestlers who placed in state competition. The VIP list includes such notables as Morris Coleman (1963), Rodney Ott (1964), Randy Rodriguez (1968) and Chris Leverenz (1978).

One more note of interest during this season of good-will. Wayne's super distance runner, Doug Tolson, will get a shot at the National AAU Cross Country title for his age group thanks to the local Kiwanis Club which is footing the plane fare.

Tolson, who won the class A state title and went on to win the

For this one moment, Robichaud's Terry Ross is in control of things under the board, but the Bulldogs had their usual problems against visiting Inkster Friday night and were overpowered, 71-52, in the Suburban Athletic Conference opener for both teams. While Inkster rests during the Christmas Holidays, Robichaud will defend its city title at the fourth annual Dearborn Heights Holiday Tournament.

Robichaud easy prey for Inkster cagers

The anticipated showdown between arch-rivals Inkster and Dearborn Heights Robichaud didn't materialize as Inkster shot down their Suburban Athletic Conference foes, 71-52, before a partisan Robichaud crowd Friday night.

The victory gave Coach George Thompson Jr. and his Vikings a share of first place with River Rouge which beat Highland Park in a breathtaking come-from-behind game also on Friday.

Inkster will hang up its guns now until January 8 when it resumes its chase for the elusive SAC championship.

"The bench played a very important part in the game against Robichaud," said Thompson. "I felt that because of their height advantage we would be vulnerable on the boards, but I was able to use almost everyone which gave our players an opportunity to rest."

Thompson was forced to juggle his lineup when DaShawn Wells reported in with tonsillitis. He elevated sophomore Darrell Lewis to varsity status and the young cager came through with five baskets and several key rebounds.

Both teams appeared inflicted by a severe case of nerves during the first eight minutes of the conflict when Inkster emerged atop of a 10-4 score. Then, Eric Crouch rattled the nets for 13 of 19 points to lead the Vikings to a commanding 33-19 halftime lead.

The outcome of the game was never in doubt after the initial half as the Vikings played cat-and-mouse the rest of the night.

Crouch's 19 points - he also made 5 of 6 at the foul line - topped all scorers, while teammates Al Dukes, Steve Tompkinson and Lewis also were in double figures. Each had 10 points.

Inkster needed a "pep talk," of sorts and a second half rally to put down a respected Detroit Cass Tech team, 64-55, earlier in the week.

After forging ahead 13-6 in the first period, Inkster fell behind as 6-5 Duane Rogers scored 10 of his 18 points to bring the Detroiters back to a 29-20 halftime lead.

"I told my players if they didn't want to play to stay in the locker room and we just wouldn't go out there for the second half," said Thompson. "I think I got the message across to them because we played an excellent second half."

Inkster outscored their visitors 22-8 in the third period with Tompkinson and Willis tossing in eight points apiece in that pivotal quarter.

Wells was the triggerman for the Viking surge as he picked off three key errant passes and turned them into easy layups.

Romulus crushes Annapolis

Eagles go to Christmas tournament

That one-point loss to Flint Beecher seems to be causing Romulus more pain with each passing week.

The defeat taints the Eagles' otherwise perfect record as Coach Ron Hanna's minions crushed an undermanned Dearborn Heights' Annapolis squad 74-49 for their fourth win in five starts.

"You have to be happy with the way our kids are playing," said

Hanna, "and, do you know that if we had made that last shot against Beecher we would have been undefeated. We've come a long way and it's our defense that is doing it - if we continue to play solid defense, we'll be all-right."

Romulus quickly established their superiority over the Dearborn Heights quintet, racing from an 18-8 first period lead to a 35-21 halftime advantage.

Annapolis unfortunately tried to zone the fast-moving Eagles in the first period and Vince Bean tore that zone to shreds as he drilled in 10 of his 14 points in that period.

Any Annapolis hopes of turning its game around in the third period was met with opposition by Romulus who polished up their rivals with a 17-7 quarter, allowing Hanna to go to the bench at will in the stretch.

Tom Schick, who replaced senior

John Kersey in the starting lineup, responded with 10 points, nine rebounds and four blocked shots for the winners. However, Darryl Lewis led the Eagle's offensive assault with a perfect three for three at the foul line and eight baskets for 19 points.

Burrus, Herndon run wild against Allen Park '5'

Shrugging off Allen Park's superiority in heights, Belleville's diminutive cagers, led by Herb Burrus and Gary Herndon, went on a scoring rampage and beat their Suburban 8 Conference cage rivals 82-76 Friday night.

The victory, the second in three league starts, solidified Belleville's grip on second place as the teams broke for the Christmas Holidays.

Coach Tom Niemi's Tigers trail undefeated league co-champs, Plymouth Salem and Livonia Bentley in the standings.

Pointing out that he felt his team put pressure on Allen Park the entire game, Niemi said, "that we also received excellent support from the bench thanks to Mike Edwards, Chuck Patterson and Bruce Woods."

Belleville took a 19-14 lead over the host, who had its problems coping with the Tigers' over-all team speed. Herndon, who sank six of his 20 points in the initial eight minutes, while Edwards, who replaced Blackman in that opening period, drilling in five points, the Tigers established a slim lead.

But the Parkers made a run for it in the second period at they tied the score at 36-all before Belleville's 6-5 sophomore, Earl Watson, tapped in a basket at the buzzer to give the visitors a 38-36 edge which they managed to protect the rest of the way.

Belleville outscored the Jaguars 25-20 in the third period, but lost the scoring duel 20-19 in the finale.

Watson had a superb game as he contributed 16 rebounds and 13 points, but it was Burrus who earned individual scoring honors as the All-Area cager hit on 13 jumpers and made three of five from the free throw line for a game high 29 points. Watson and Herndon were the only other Tiger cagers in two figures.

Allen Park also received a balanced scoring attack from its starters. Dave McCormack had 22, while Gary Wilkie contributed 19 and Jim Bowdell had 16. Jim Lada chipped in 10.

"Allen Park are much bigger than we are and very mobile," commented Niemi, "but we managed to cash in on our full court press and utilize our speed to our advantage in this one."

Belleville will face a strong Westland John Glenn team Wednesday night at 6 in the first round of the Western Wayne Basketball Tournament hosted by Wayne Memorial. Wayne takes on Cherry Hill at 7 p.m., with the survivors meeting the following night for the tournament title. (See related story.)

Good reason why Romulus has gotten off to an excellent start in basketball this season is the superb defensive efforts by the Eagles as exemplified by Richard Lewis (22) who has this Monroe Catholic Central player bottled up.

Ready to pick off the pass is David Casey (32). The Eagles went on to rout MCC 88-67 and have built up a 5-1 record on the season after crushing Dearborn Heights Annapolis.

Glenn wins own tourney

Rockets have 5 champs

A potent Westland John Glenn wrestling machine showed why it is considered among the finest in the state Saturday night as it rolled to an easy victory at the annual Glenn Tournament, nee Western Wayne Meet.

Glenn emerged from the all-day affair which featured 14 other area schools with five individual champs, four seconds and one third to amass 249 points, easily setting down its closest rival, Plymouth Salem, which had 181½ points but equalled

Glenn's number of individual weight winners.

Grand Blanc finished third with 103 points, followed by Edsel Ford, (98) and Livonia Stevenson (89½). "I was pleased at the way we wrestled," commented Glenn's veteran coach Bob Lusk, "and we wrestled a whole lot better than we did earlier in the year."

Glenn received sterling performances from All-Area candidate Paul Demers who proved he was the best 105 wrestler at the meet by beating Grand Blanc's John McIvor in the finals 9-0.

Glenn's Duane Gibbs pinned 145-pound finalist, Doug Need of Miland in 3:45 to earn the gold in that weight, while teammate Bill Meyer was the top grappler in the 155-pound category, turning back Stevenson's Eric Tempy by a fall in 1:14.

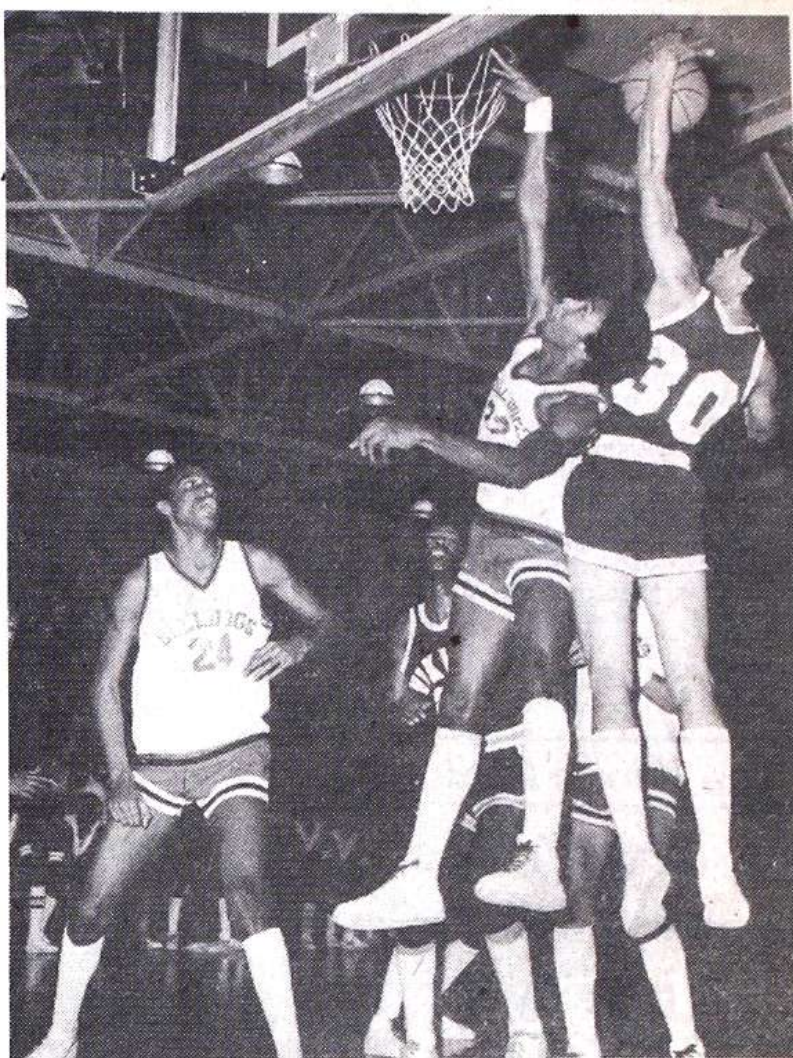

Ken Hodge also gave Glenn a first place when he outwrestled Stevenson's 165-pounder Wayne Hoppe 9-1 and Jeff Null of Glenn stopped Edsel Ford's Don Cohlstrand on a 6-2 decision to win his gold medal.

Lusk received second place performances out of Pete Bologna (98), Terry O'Neill (119), Bennett Clemons (191) and heavyweight John Burns.

Salem Coach Ron Krueger had winners in Jim Schultz (98), Jeff Brown (112), Randy Viperman (119), Mark Ross (126) and Jerry Valchin (138).

Romulus' Darren Cline set himself up as the heavyweight to beat in the area when he strolled off the mats after beating Glenn's Burns on a 3:39 fall.

Glass is lone Wayne winner at Toledo Rogers Invitational

Is there a finer 155-pound wrestler in these parts than Wayne Memorial's Joe Glass?

Glass stepped into the limelight over the weekend by capturing the first place trophy at the prestigious Toledo Rogers Tournament. He was the lone Wayne winner as his teammates wound up in seventh 1. Temperance Bedford (240); 2. Toledo Rogers (181); 3. Trenton (171); 4. Whitmer (144½); 5. Adrian (118½); 6. Fremont Ross (101½); 7. Wayne Memorial (97½); 8. Maumee (83); 9. Toledo Waite (66); 10. Flushing (63); 11. Ann Arbor Pioneer (43); 12. Toledo Scott (22).

Willow Run clips Glenn 'at the wire'

It went down to the wire between Westland John Glenn and Willow Run and Willow Run won the freestyle relay to spoil Coach Jim Lawrence's debut as the Glenn head boys' swimming coach.

Willow Run, getting eight decisive points in the 400-yard freestyle relay, edged their out of league rivals, 87-85.

"It was a meet that a lot of sophomores came through and performed very well," said Lawrence, however, a couple of mental mistakes cost us the victory."

Glenn was nosed out in the first event - the 200-yard medley relay - as both teams were clocked in identical 1:53.5 performances. But the officials gave the Flyers the eight points, while Glenn picked up six for their second and third place finishes.

After meeting Churchill on Tuesday, the Rockets will break for the Christmas Holidays and return to the waters on Jan. 9 when they will travel across district boundaries to Wayne Memorial for their first meet of the new year.

Midwestern AAU Section of the championship, is considered one of the finest young distance runners in the nation.

Even though there are four teams shooting it out at Livonia Churchill this week, there won't be a "tournament championship" when the cloud clears tonight, (Thursday).

In fact, Churchill cage Coach Fred Price says they have changed the name of the four-team tournament format to Christmas Classic.

Why?

"There won't be a championship or consolation game," explained Price. "What we're doing is pitting two rival city teams against one another during the second day of competition and see if that will bring the fans out."

"Also, we play Canton in our league twice (Western Six) and if we played a tournament-style format during the holiday we could meet them again. Plus the fact we may also get a look at them in the district playoff and that means our two teams could play four times against one another - and we just don't want that to happen."

"Moreover, this new format which will pit Canton against Salem - two schools that physically are about 75 yards apart from one another - and us playing Stevenson should be really interesting because of the natural rivalries," Price added.

Glenn draws first blood against Redford Union, 81-71

Westland John Glenn will long remember and Redford Union will not easily forget Glenn's 81-71 victory Friday night.

Coach Gordie Davis's Rockets drew first blood in what was the initial Northwest Conference basketball contact between the two schools. (R.U. dropped out of the Suburban 8 Conference last year and was officially welcomed to the N-W this season).

It was also the first meeting ever between the schools who had not come in contact during playoff or regular season competition.

"I thought our kids played a particularly good second half," said Davis whose team has now won five of six confrontations this year. "We received some good contributions from a lot of kids. Our opposition is teaming Daran (Daran Armstrong, Glenn's leading scorer) and the other players are coming through for us."

Last period surge lifts Churchill past Western Getting their fast-breaks going in the final period, Livonia Churchill pulled away from a pesky Walled Lake Western and pulled out a 56-46 Western Six Conference victory Friday night.

Trailing by one going into the final eight minutes, Coach Fred Price's Chargers managed to outscore their rivals 18-7 in the finale with Dave Krick supplying the winners with eight of the decisive points.

Krick managed to get two key baskets off of the break which convinced Western to give up.

"We switched into a combination defense," said Price after his team's second-in-a-row league victory, "and we were able to force a couple of turnovers and Krick got a pair of layups off of them."

Churchill had a slim 15-14 lead in the first period, but Western tied it up at 27-all before the half, then went on to outscore the Chargers 12-11 in the third period.

Mike Talovich, Churchill's floor general, generated most of the flair that rallied the Chargers back after being down by as much as eight points in the first half.

Krick made seven field goals and picked up a pair of free throws for 16 points, the team's high. However, Western's 5-10 senior guard Mike Bryant, who pumped in six field goals and seven of 10 free throws for 19, was the game's leading scorer.

Price was pleased with his team's efforts at the foul line where Churchill canned 16 of 11 attempts. Western made 10 of 20.

With the league play out of the way for now, Churchill turns its thoughts to the Christmas Classic which they will host. The first round of the classic took place Tuesday night and the second and final round which pits Churchill against Stevenson and Canton against Plymouth Salem is scheduled for tonight (Thursday, Dec. 21) beginning at 7 p.m.

Wayne buries Taylor Center

On the road back to what is hopefully a league championship season, Wayne Memorial's grapplers buried Taylor Center, 74-0 for a one-sided Great Lakes 8 Conference triumph.

Wayne surrendered the league crown to Monroe a year ago and Coach John Wood's wrestlers would like it returned to the display case where it had been held for safekeeping for four years prior to the loss.

"We have an inexperienced team," said Wood who is in his second year as the Wayne mentor. "We're not exactly weak, but we have a lot of untested wrestlers in our lineup this season."

Wayne swimmers 3rd at EMU meet

Wayne Memorial opened the 1978-79 swim season at the Eastern Michigan University Invitational and quickly established itself as one of the top teams in the area.

Coach Jim McPartlin's Zebras captured third place in a field of 12 teams and also chalked up medals in five of the eight events.

The competitions were open to teams in the state whose coaches graduated from EMU.

"We had some excellent times for our first meet of the year," said Wayne Coach Jim McPartlin, "but we have a long ways to go."

Milan, with 123 points, won the team championship, beating its closest challenger, Warren, by 13 points. Warren had 110 points, followed by Wayne Memorial (97), Portage Northern (94), Marshall (85), Chelsea (70), Owosso (70), Willow Run (55), Allen Park (54), Southfield (49) and Redford Union (41).

Wayne picked up a pair of second places as the Zebras team of Steve Thompson, Steve Matheny, Mark Gallaher and Scott Martin was edged by Warren in the 200-yard freestyle event. Wayne's time was 1:39.6, while Warren posted a 1:38.2.

Wayne also had the third best 200-yard breaststroke relay foursome at the invitational as Steve Weeks, Tim Butler, Andy Balwinski and Don Bolton combined for a 2:09.8 to trail Taylor (2:02.0) to the finish line and Milan, which was second to the wire.

John Lewandowski, Steve Thompson, Dave Hills and Tom Brown gave Wayne a second place for the 400-yard freestyle. The were clocked in 3:31.7, losing the gold to Warren (3:24.5).

Wayne's Scott Papke and Roy Gowen were third on the diving boards with a total of 179.5 points. Milan was first and Chelsea was second with 185.

Warren's 800-yard freestyle relay teams turned in a superb 7:23.4 in winning the 800-yard freestyle relay. That performance qualified the foursome for the state finals.

Wayne was third with a 7:49.5 as Steve Matheny, Lewandowski, Hills and Brown came up behind the winner and Marshall.

Wayne will stage an inaugural Alumni Swimming & Diving Meet on January 6 and former Wayne swimmers are urged to contact Coach McPartlin at 721-2660, extension 270, if they wish to take part in the meet.

Competition will get underway at 3 p.m.

Not season to be jolly for Zebras

Wayne continues skid at Fordson

This definitely isn't the season to be jolly for first year coach Steve Schwartz and his Wayne Memorial cagers.

The Zebras lost a breather to Taylor Center a couple of weeks ago and they continued their doldrums Friday night in Dearborn where always potent Fordson handed the visitors a 56-36 setback.

Wayne's Great Lakes 8 Conference record dipped to 1-2 and now they're fighting for survival.

"Our poor shooting did us in," pointed out Schwartz whose team has a week of practice ahead of it before hosting the Christmas Holiday special, the Western Wayne, on Wednesday.

"We hit on three of 15 shots in the first period and if we had converted a few of those it would have kept us in the game," Schwartz' synopsis concluded.

Haunted by the poor shooting, Wayne fell behind 10-6 in the first period and trailed 26-19 at the halfway point.

Fordson put their visitors away with an 18-7 wedge after the intermission to grab an insurmountable 44-26 advantage for three period - and you don't spot Coach John McIntyre's ball club that many points and hope to make up for it in the last eight minutes.

Frank Gajor, whose brother John owns most of the league rebounding records, did the Zebras' in with seven of his 10 points in that pivotal period.

Fordson, Taylor Center and Wyandotte - each with untarnished 3-0 records - have the league lead as the teams break for the holidays.

Wayne shared the next spot with Truman and Monroe (1-2), while Lincoln Park and Riverview head into the New Year still looking for their first league victories.

Regional finalists

After playing third fiddle to River Rouge and Highland Park in the Suburban Athletic Conference, Inkster's girls' basketball team put it all together for the playoffs and won the Class B Districts and reached the Regional finals before Southgate Aquinas ousted Coach Alton Darden's Vikings. The Vikings amassed a 9-4 over-all record for the 1978 season. Members of the team are: (kneeling, from left) Ann Guess, Donna Story, Tisa Robinson, and Susan Gillard; second row are Vince Carter, student manager, Carla Claypool, Yvette Hughes, Clara Caiborne, Sandra D'French, Carla Poole and Coach Darden. Miss Poole led the Viking offense with a 12.6 point per game average, while Miss French topped the rebounders, hauling down 12 per game.

Canton plays like the next Western '6' cage champions

Looking more and more like the next Western Six Conference basketball champions, a veteran-packed Plymouth Canton quintet crushed Farmington Harrison 76-67 for their second league win of the campaign.

Coach Craig Bell, in his inaugural year as head of the Canton varsity program, translated the victory as "important because it shows we can rebound."

Canton's lone loss is to out-of-league rival, Southfield Lathrup which marred the Chiefs' record 60-54 the previous week. The Chiefs' victory credits include a 106-66 shellacking of Livonia Franklin, a 76-56 triumph over Belleville, a 75-60 win over defending ledague champ, Waterford Mott.

But Harrison made Canton sweat for the decision.

Ahead 14-13 at the end of the initial period, Canton walked off the floor at intermission to discuss a 34-all tie.

When they came back the Chiefs took control of the situation as Mike

Leary tossed in 10 of his 18 points and senior Frank LaSota came off the bench and gave the Plymouth team what Bell called "stability" in the form of rebounding in the third period.

"In the first half we had our share of problems gaining control of the boards," Bell pointed out, "but Frank came off the bench and gave us a needed lift in that pivotal third period."

A 6-5 senior, LaSota, teaming with Mike Leary, took the initiative away from Harrison and turned the game around.

Butch King, the deft Canton ballhandler who is equally deadly shooting jumpers, rang up eight field goals and hit four of seven free throws for 20 points, the game high.

Leary and Rusty Mandle chipped in 18 each to offset a balanced Harrison attack which also included four players in double figures.

Leary tossed in 10 of his 18 points and senior Frank LaSota came off the bench and gave the Plymouth team what Bell called "stability" in the form of rebounding in the third period.

Wayne figure skaters 2nd best at meet

Claiming eight first place medals, the Wayne Figure Skating Club finished second at the third annual ice skating Institute of American Figure Skating Competitions held recently.

The competition was open to all age groups and some 200 skaters entered in the events which included dance, pairs skating, and free style.

Also competing were precision teams.

Among those from the local club who earned top honors are: Tami Nichols, Jenny Brooks, Lori Trotter, Linda Kober, Leann Smith, Michele Vinson and Lisa Ronchetto.

In second place were Rhonda Farmer, Toni Whitley, Jill Matthews, Marie Colling, and Gail Good.

Barbara Piesiak, Maryann Pipes, Gerri Nicosia and Pam Wootton.

Wayne also had several who earned ribbons for their performances. The recipients are: Kathleen Summitt, Kay Pountney, Sally Huff, Suzanne Okony, April Schiffer, Deborah Rosseau, Ruth Petrowsky and Pamela Petry.

Other members of the local skating club are: Paula Huff, Michelle Smith, Lorilee Spielman, Donna McGlade, Kristin Krarup, Nancy Ianni, Jane Matthews, Kimberly Suyak, Kay Butler, Mary Judd, Dawn Newman, Sharon Ganzini, Ellen Petrowsky, Jim Whitehead, Susie Wootton, Kimberly Zimolzak, Ericka Newman, Corey Fisher, Debbie Castaldini, Heather Jones, Ann Withrow, Julie Lock, Lori DeKraker, and Darcy Rycklinski.

"Our program is only four-year old," commented instructor Marcie Colling, but it has grown tremendously in that span and we average approximately 400 skaters a year. We have also provided these youngsters the opportunity to compete in competition all over the United States and Canada.

"Thanks to our Booster Club, we have managed to do things here that we wouldn't have without their cooperation. In fact, the Booster Club has recently voted to provide the lighting for our annual ice show which will take place May 11, 12 and 13."

Mrs. Colling pointed out if there are any ice skating enthusiasts who wish to join the club, they may do so by enrolling in the next registration which is set for January 15 and 16, between the hours of 5 to 8 p.m. at the Wayne Arena, Howe and Annapolis Rds.

Gymnasts are winners

Two area gymnasts, competing for the Rebel Gymnastics Club, earned medals last week in the Southwest League.

Lisa Zaffino of Westland claimed two first places, winning the vaulting and uneven bar events, placing third in the floor exercise which lifted her to a second place in over-all competition.

Livonia Franklin should move cage team to Garden City

Livonia Franklin and sophomore Coach Jim McIntyre should contemplate moving their cage team into Garden City - they would be shoo-ins for the city championship.

the Livonia-based high school invaded both West and East highs last week and came away with impressive victories.

The two wins boosted the Patriots' over-all record to 3-3.

"I felt we played some of our finest ball against the two Garden City schools," McIntyre commented. "Our kids don't quit and it's beginning to pay off. In fact, if that game against Plymouth Salem in our season opener had gone just a couple of minutes longer, we'd be 4-2 now."

Led by Gary DeYonker, who was flawless at the foul line in the last eight minutes when the Patriots outscored their hosts 21-7 en route to a 73-52 victory over Coach Mike Reilly's Panthers, Franklin picked up its first Northwest Suburban win.

Up to that point, the game was in doubt.

East, sparked by sharpshooting Mike Kossick and Tim Taylor, held a slim 17-16 first period edge, but the Livonians came back to take over 34-31 at halftime.

Franklin increased its margin by outscoring the Panthers 18-14 in the third period, then, with DeYonker sinking six of seven free throws and netting a basket, the Patriots pulled away to a commanding lead.

DeYonker and center Chris Baker split 28 points between them and Jeff Reich and Bob Gohl each had 12 while Jim Wilson joined the balanced attack with 11 for the Patriots who shot 17 of 26 at the free throw line.

West also gave Franklin something to think about early in their nonleague matchup. Tied at the end of the first eight, 15-all, Franklin broke the knot with a 23-15 edge in the second period, fattened their lead with a 18-13 third period and buried the respectable Tigers in a wild 30-22 finale.

"This is one of West's better ball clubs in recent years," McIntyre said, "and they came back and refused to quit. I think our press hurt them and we managed to cash in on their turnovers."

Wilson had his best game of the season as he sacked 24 points, scoring on nine field goals and six of eight free throws. Baker and reich

Belleville matmen destroy Allen Park

Belleville began the defense of its Suburban 8 Conference wrestling title with a cut-clear 48-9 victory over challenger, Allen Park, last Thursday.

Coach Gerald Malecek's Tigers swept 10 of the 13 weight classes, but the score was closer than the final count indicates, according to the Belleville coach.

"Though the final score appears lopsided," Malecek said, "some of the matches were very close and could have gone either way."

Belleville's 126-pounder Joe Justin, who pinned Thuke Flood, remained undefeated on the season and the Tigers also received wins by falls from Chris O'Keefe (119), Jeff Rose (138), John Enzenauen (145) and heavyweight Jerry Calhoun.

New Boston Huron's senior pivotman Randy Pichan(white jersey) came up with a superlative performance against Grosse Ile last Friday when he picked off a score of rebounds and contributed 25 points toward a 67-54 victory. Pichan's efforts were described as "superb" by Coach Gene Smith who said, "it's the kind of momentum we need to carry us this season."

Pichan is 'superb' in victory

Huron sinks Islanders

If 6-4 senior Randy Pichan can come up with a few more performances like the one against Grosse Ile Friday night he may find himself an all-stater in basketball, an honor which eluded the Chiefs' quarterback.

Pichan picked off 22 rebounds and scored 25 points - 11 in a crucial second period - and also contributed four assists to lead the Chiefs to a 67-54 victory over the Islanders in the conference opener for both teams. "Randy played an exceptional game," said Huron Coach Gene Smith. "He was superb and, needless to say, his performance was the key to our victory."

Huron struggled to a 10-6 first period lead before Pichan caught fire and pumped in 11 of the Chiefs' 27 second period points which lifted Huron out of reach, 37-17, at half-time.

Though the Islanders refused to quit and came out ahead 18-16 and 19-14 at the end of the last two periods, the second half damage had been fatal.

Pichan's 25 points stood up as the game's high he received ample support from Jay Richert who had 12. One facet that Coach Smith would like to see immediate improvement was the Chiefs' free throw shooting. They made 17 of 33

Ex-Romulus grappler

Bergmooser in Toledo lineup

Dennis Bergmooser, a former Romulus high wrestler who transferred to Trenton last year, is one of 22 members of the University of Toledo's wrestling squad this season.

The 5-8, 126 pound engineering major will be competing in his first collegiate season for the Rockets this winter. Bergmooser earned varsity letters in wrestling during all four years in high school and was given All-Area recognition two years ago.

Bergmooser is expected to be one of the three freshmen recruits who will battle this season for the top position in the 118-pound class.

Toledo finished last season with a 6-3 dual meet record and a sixth place finish in the Mid-American Conference Championship Meet.

Most of the 1977-78 season the Rockets were forced to forfeit the 118 pound weight class due to the problem of a lack of over-all team depth.

Another Romulus native, Virgil Smith, graduate of Romulus High, is serving as a graduate assistant coach under Bowles while continuing his studies for a master's degree.

Smith was a two-sport athlete while an undergraduate at UT, competing in both wrestling and baseball. Virgil's brother, Brad, was a two-time All-Area, All-State wrestler at Romulus who earned All-American honors in wrestling at Toledo before graduating a year ago.

CITY OF ROMULUS NOTICE

LEGAL NOTICE TO FAMILIES WHO LIVED IN PUBLIC HOUSING PROJECTS OPERATED BY THE ROMULUS HOUSING COMMISSION OR LIVED IN PUBLIC HOUSING PROJECTS IN ANY OTHER CITY BETWEEN MARCH 16, 1971, - SEPTEMBER 26, 1975.

If you rented a house or apartment from the ROMULUS HOUSING COMMISSION or any other Public Housing Agency (PHA) during the period between March 16, 1971, and September 26, 1975, you may be eligible to file a claim for a refund of part of your rent during that period if:

1. The wife or husband of the head of the household was present and dependent upon the head of the household for support and/or;
2. a dependent member of your family household was employed.

If you believe your family falls within one of the categories described above, you may wish to continue reading this Notice in order to determine how and under what circumstances you may file a claim.

On July 7, 1978, the District Court of the District of Columbia entered a Stipulated Order providing that the definition of family income for purposes of computing maximum rentals for public housing, as contained in a HUD Circular, which excluded spouses from the $300 deduction for each dependent and excluded dependents from the $300 deduction for each secondary wage earner, was invalid and violated the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended. The effect of this determination is that certain families who lived in public housing during the period from March 16, 1971, to September 26, 1975, may have been charged too much rent. Therefore, the District Court ordered HUD to establish a one million dollar fund for the payment of claims which current or former tenants of public housing may submit for a refund of any overpayments.

The District Court's Stipulated Order provides that, if valid claims exceed one million dollars, HUD has the option of having the Order dissolved in which case NTO and HUD may negotiate a modified settlement or proceed with further litigation. Thus, claimants should realize that the submittal of a claim determined valid by a PHA may result in full, partial, or no payment, depending on the total amount of valid claims submitted to HUD, or the final outcome of any further litigation. Any person wishing to receive a copy of the Stipulated Order or a claim form may do so by making their request known to a local PHA.

Individuals wishing to submit a claim must fill in the claim form made a part of this Notice and must submit it to the Public Housing Agency's address indicated on the claim form, or such other appropriate Public Housing Agency if different from the address indicated, within 120 days from Dec. 6, 1978. No claims will be accepted after the end of the 120 day period, April 6, 1979.

Information provided by the claimant on the claim form must be specific as to the time period between March 16, 1971, and September 26, 1975, for which the wife or husband of the head of the household was present and was a dependent and/or a dependent in the household was employed.

Publish every week until April 4.

Claiming eight of the 13 weight classes, Belleville was crowned master of the 1978 Chelsea Wrestling Invitational over the weekend.

Coach Gerald Malecek's Tigers also were picked as the team to beat at Saturday's Wayne Memorial Ott Invitational which will bring together some of the top teams in the area.

"With the Winekoff brothers (Carl and Rick), Joe Justin in their lineup," said Wayne Coach John Wood, "I'd have to say that Belleville is the team to beat at our tournament."

"They have a solid lineup this year, one that will be difficult to beat," Wood added.

chances, "and that could cost us games if we don't improve."

Huron was back at work last night, taking on Southgate in a nonleague game. They'll return to league action Friday night against one of the pre-season title favorites, Monroe Catholic Central. MCC, the host for the second league game, is coming off of a five-point loss to Tecumseh.

"Monroe will be without the services of their best guard (Masserant) who has a knee injury and won't be back in the lineup until after Christmas," noted Coach Smith, "but they are still tough because they have a lot of talent in 6-5 Hill and some holdovers from last year."

The preliminary matches at Wayne will begin at noon and Belleville and Wayne will be joined by a highly-touted Trenton, Warren Lincoln, Allen Park and Garden City West in the battle for the Ott title. (The tournament is named for the four Ott brothers who are credited with helping Wayne become a state power.)

At Chelsea, Belleville emerged from the mats with first place plaques thanks to the performances of David Cook (98), Joe Justin (126), Scott Harsch (132), Jeff Rose (138), Carl Winekoff (155), Rick Winekoff (165), Terry Calhoun (178) and Steve Cook (191).

Belleville had 198½ points in winning its first tournament of the season, while New Boston Huron was runnerup (165), followed by Tecumseh (93½), Chelsea (93), Fenton (75), Albion (53), Linden (46) and Dexter (26).

John Enzenauer was a runnerup for the Tigers at 145 and Kerry O'Keefe was fourth at 112.

to a guard to get the team some help in the backcourt.

"Though it has taken away from Richard's scoring, he has done a tremendous job for us where we needed some help," said Coach Hanna.

Joining Lewis, Bean and Schick in the double figure scoring column was Morgan who counted 12 points for the evening.

Romulus hit on six of nine free throws and shot 54 percent from the field (34 of 63) as compared to Annapolis' 11 of 19 at the foul line and an anemic 33 percent from the field.

Tiger Club 5th in league

Despite outstanding performances from its medley, freestyle relays and Laura Kuhr in the backstroke, Belleville's Tiger Swim Club had to settle for a fifth place finish at the league championships held recently in Chelsea.

Chelsea earned the conference championship with 1,671 points, while Milan was second with 1,393½. Plymouth finished third (1,091), Ypsilanti was fourth (1,018) and Belleville, fifth (735½). Willow Run was sixth (528).

Miss Kuhr was the best 50-yard backstroker in the 13-14 age group, turning in a 32.1 for her winning performance.

The Tigers also picked up gold in the 9-10 boys, 100-yard medley relay thanks to Matt Stoelton, Tony Atwell, Adam Theeke and Greg Lynch. Their winning time was 1:14.1.

Atwell, Matt Stoelton, Theeke and Lynch were double winners when they combined for a 1:06 for the 100-yard freestyle relay.

Belleville also received some excellent individual performances from Matt Stoelton, in the 50-yard backstroke. He was third in 43.5, while Atwell was also third in the 50-yard breaststroke (45.0), and Theeke had the second best time in the 25-yard butterfly (17.9).

Calvin Loshinskie had the third best time in the 50-yard backstroke (36.0) and Tracy Bunnell earned a third place finish for her 2:38 in the 200-yard freestyle.

Belleville's 13-14 year old, 200-yard freestyle foursome of Mark Oddy, Doug Traskos, Randy Schofield and Brian McClinton was the second best team in that event. They combined for a 1:52.5.

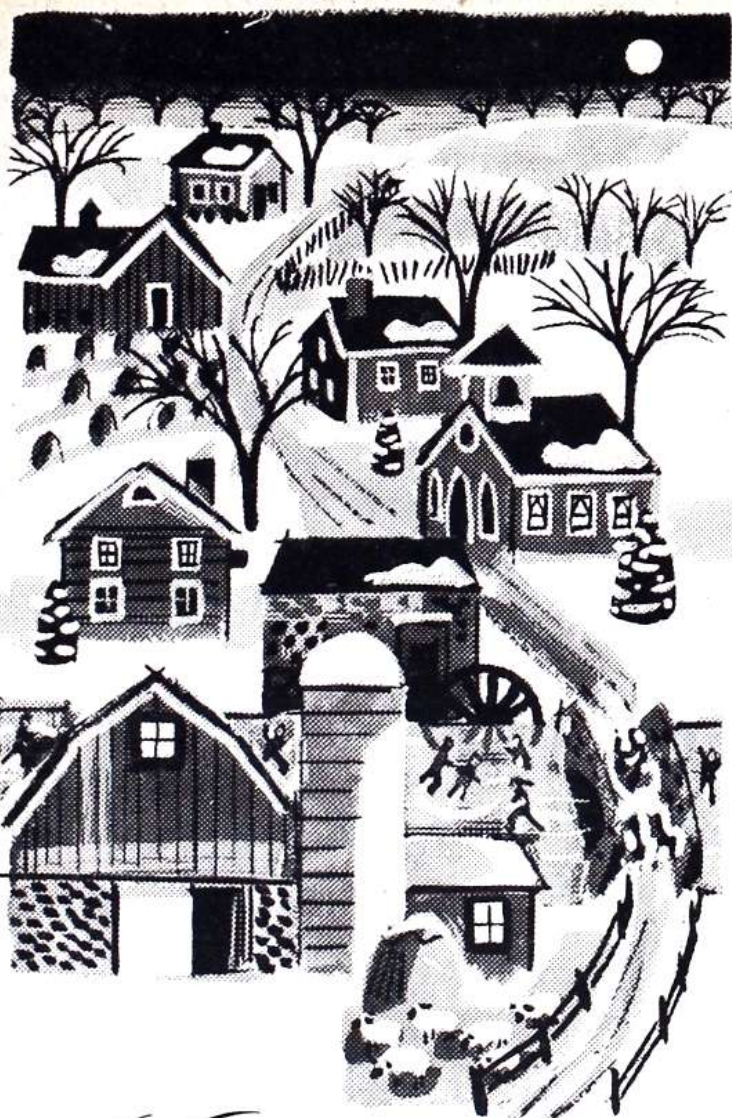

MERRY CHRISTMAS

Eggnog goes the pie route

Suburban Living Editor

Although our home has taken on that special expectant feeling of Christmas, there's a big "something" missing.

The tree's not up as yet but that's not quite the void — it's that "hush" that seems so foreign! — the lack of chatter, giggles and buoyed-up enthusiasm — that giddiness of youth that once drove me so frantic.

The girls are missing; that's what's wrong!

(And once again, I remind you that this is being composed "last Wednesday" and two of our trio were due in from school on Saturday. So, by now, I might just be back to pre-insanityville.)

"Going 'round the bend" seems to be something of a pastime of mine lately so I'd not be justified in blaming the younger set for my idiosyncrasies (or this the first stage of senility?)

For instance, last week Tuesday was to have been "D-Day" (done-day) for Christmas shopping for this particular citizen who'd been stomping the neighboring malls since Thanksgiving departed. I'd not as yet checked out Twelve Oaks, tho, and Tuesday was to find me completely befuddled at the layout. (I'd been there just once; a year ago when only three-quarters of the shops were open.)

I found myself forever at one of the directories and constantly re-tracing my steps; accomplishing very little and getting more tired and disgusted by the minute. Not a single name'd been ex-ed out on my list!

It finally got to the point where I'd HAD it and I soon found myself breezing down I-94 — headed for home — when zingo! The message center came to life: YOU FORGOT YOUR PURCHASES IN PACKAGE PICK-UP (recited in Martian staccato cadence.)

(This is NOT a "first" — I'd pulled this same act at Fairlane shortly after IT had opened.)

I was too close to home by then to turn around so (after calling myself a few choice names) mentally shelved the return for "tomorrow... tomorrow."

About 20 hours later I once again sailed down the super slab (on cruise control lest my irritation go to my driving foot.) Got to the mall and decided to check out those sale items (for me) that I'd passed up the day before when I folded so fast.

Then — having succumbed to two tempting mark-downs I had to find just the right accessories. That took me deeper and deeper into the labyrinth and what was to have been a dash-in and dash-out affair turned out to be a wash-out. I ended up carrying my initial two purchases on hangers (L & T was out of boxes AND bags) and getting cramps in my fingers; with frazzled nerves from searching out those hidden salespeople; with a pounding headache from not having eaten; and with sweaty feet from too-hot boots.

The westerly gales carried me to my car and, once again, I found myself tooling down the highway when... you guessed it! I'd forgotten package pick-up again.

(And BG had the nerve to ask why the air was so blue when he opened the door on the Buick!)

Do you want to know what my family probably said as they read the past few graphs?

FREE GOLF, FREE GOLF!

Now that's another story and an old ploy BG used to use whenever I did something whacky. You see, he learned to golf (free of charge) at the Ypsilanti State Hospital as the guest of one of our friends who worked there. Not only could the staff play without cost but so could the patients.

BG's strategy was — if he could convince everyone I was a bit scrambled, he could have me committed.

And thereby are born such sayings as FREE GOLF, FREE GOLF!

Suggestions for the "pet peeve" department continue to be offered. This week Pandora's Box includes: people who barge into elevators before passengers alight... snotty receptionists in doctors' offices... waitresses who don't know what the soup-of-the-day is... repairmen who don't show when scheduled... the parking situation (and having to pay, too) at St. Joe's... people who constantly interrupt your story with a similar occurrence of their own.

Still other gripes were people who don't return telephone calls... guys who never buy a round but willingly drink YOUR treats... people picking their teeth in public... slow drivers... hypochondriacs.

(And thank you for your comments, calls and suggestions. They're appreciated.)

Having nodded in agreement with many of the things Andy Rooney was saying at the close of "Sixty Minutes" on the 10th, I can only add he's certainly right about the way people sign their cards.

Nothing is so impersonal as a card from someone you've always called AUNT Kate and UNCLE Jake imprinted with MR. AND MRS. JAKE JONES. Or the pal you've always called "Muff" suddenly transformed via the engraved word into Martha Merriweather Doe. It makes that close, intimate touch fade as fast as disappearing ink.

By all means, sign your cards the way people have always known you. If you've suddenly decided to go the prim-proper route (as per MMD above) then advise your addressee that you no longer wish to be called or known as "Muff" — lay it on them gently.

IN CASE YOU'VE EVER WONDERED: One large marshmallow equals 10 miniature marshmallows and one cup of miniature marshmallows equals 11 or 12 large ones.

A member of our journalistic staff questioned me last week as to the meaning of The Bottom Line on 12-6-78: "If you go... you owe."

Sine he may be just one of many who didn't dig the meaning, it was taken from an answer given by Dear Abbey to a question on entertaining: was the writer OBLIGATED to reciprocate?

Ergo — "If you go... you owe!"

THE BOTTOM LINE: Since this is the last issue we print before the clock strikes Christmas, may I take this opportunity to wish all of you a holiday season filled with the companionship of your loved ones... and may we all be blessed with togetherness, good health, safety and contentment in the new year awaiting us.

Holiday Eggnog Pie

"Eggnog made in this manner is digestible and will not cause headache."

An early American cookbook once made this promise about a particular eggnog drink popular in New England, but the same promise holds true for Eggnog Pie. This creamy custard dessert toasts the holidays.

Eggnog has been synonymous with holidays since the Dutch settlers of New York held open house for all who could come, on the first day of the year. The open house custom has survived to this day but now it is more popular to host a more intimate gathering of friends to put personal touch to the holiday fare.

Eggnog Pie is a delicious and different way to retain the traditional holiday beverage and still make it a little bit special.

The filling is made from an egg custard mix which has been combined and chilled with flavorless gelatin for added firmness. Thawed Birds Eye Cool Whip Non-Dairy Whipped Topping is then blended in for a delightful creaminess.

Eggnog Pie

1 package (4 1/2 oz.) egg custard mix
1 1/2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
2 1/4 cups milk
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 tablespoons dark rum (or use 2 teaspoons rum extract.)
2 cups (or 4 1/2 oz. container) frozen whipped topping, thawed.
1 baked 9-inch pie shell, cooled.

Combine custard mix and gelatin in saucepan. blend in milk. Bring quickly to a boil, stirring constantly. Chill until thickened. Beat until smooth. Add nutmeg and rum. Blend in 1 1/2 cups of the whipped topping. Pour into pie shell. Chill until firm — about 3 hours. Garnish with remaining whipped topping; sprinkle with additional nutmeg and decorate with spearmint candy leaves and red cinnamon candies, if desired.

"Can a Funeral Director Conduct Funerals of Any Faith?"

The answer is "Yes" for most experienced funeral directors. We have acquainted ourselves with most of the local religious customs and can advise you about them.

From the time we and the clergyman are called, we are in close touch with each other so as to pay strict heed to the family's wishes for any and all religious services. It is important for you to contact your own pastor, priest or rabbi EARLY so he can help you — and us. If you don't happen to be active in any church, we can suggest an appropriate clergy person.

During the time of the funeral planning and service, your religious faith can be a mighty strong support and source of comfort to you. To include meaningful portions of your faith in the funeral service can render additional comfort to those attending the funeral. If you have any questions about the funeral service and any religious practices, feel free to contact us by phone or stop in for consultation.

Fondues are the fun foods of the culinary world. Hostesses find them easy-do with few ingredients, quick cooking and no worries about keeping warm. Diners find fondues delightful for forking, dipping and experimenting with many different combos. All of this takes place in the cozy and intimate climate of gathering 'round the fondue pot. What could be more casual and inviting than this? There are fondues to serve as an appetizer: use the Classic Swiss or any of these cheese varieties. For the main dish, here again, any cheese recipes in this leaflet will do as well as heartier ones with meat in them. There are even fondues for dessert, once again the Classic Swiss served with fruits or intriguing ice cream varieties. Indeed, you'll find a fondue for every taste as well as every occasion.

CLASSIC SWISS FONDUE
4 cups (1 lb.) shredded Swiss cheese
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
1 clove garlic, halved
2 cups dry white wine+
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup kirsch or dry sherry+
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce (optional)
Toss together cheese and flour. Rub inside of 3-quart saucepan with garlic; discard garlic. Add wine and heat until bubbles rise. Add cheese, 1/2 cup at a time, over medium-low heat, stirring until cheese is melted after each addition. Add salt, kirsch and Worcestershire sauce, if desired. Transfer to fondue pot. Serve with cubes of French bread, vegetable dippers, cooked ham cubes or cooked shrimp. Yield: 3 and two-thirds cups.
+Dry white wines include Rhine wine, chablis or sauterne. Fondue may also be made without the addition of kirsch or sherry.

Stir in taco mix and cumin seed. Transfer to fondue pot. Serve with celery or carrot sticks, green or red pepper squares, chunks of rye or French bread, ripe olives, tortilla chips or corn chips; cuts of frankfurters or sausages. Yield 3 1/2 cups.

Sparkmans welcome Angela Lynn

Christmas will be extra special this year at the home of Sherry and John Sparkman Jr. of Belleville and there will be a lot more presents under their tree — all tagged for their new daughter, Angela Lynn.

Born Oct. 24 at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne, the baby made her debut at 8:15 a.m., weighed six pounds - 14 1/2 ounces and measured 20 inches.

Angela is the new granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sparkman Sr. of Romulus; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kertzel of Belleville; and Charles Adams of Virginia.

The proud great-grandparents include Anna Howard of Washington state; R.P. Dinsmore of Virginia and Leedi Adams of West Virginia.

The new mother is the former Sherry Adams.

MUSICAL NOTES

by Doug Brown

When the Portuguese got tired of cutting sugar cane in Hawaii, in the 1800's, they converted their machetes into musical instruments. The result was the ukulele. It is still very popular in the native music of Hawaii and is found on the mainland in some jazz bands, some music hall bands, and in general recreational playing. Basically, a ukulele looks like a miniature guitar. The banjolele is an offspring. It is produced when a small banjo is strung like a ukulele. No kidding.

Our staff at DOUG BROWN MUSIC, 9219 S. Wayne Rd., Romulus, 941-8484 would like to wish you and your family a Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year. May 1979 bring you and yours health, happiness and prosperity as well as peace across all corners of the globe. We look forward to handling all your musical needs for many years to come. Financing can be arranged.

HANDY HINT:
Musical instrument museums and exhibits can be quite interesting not only for themselves but for the history of peoples that they tell.

SD Senior Citizens attend Ice Follies

September Days Senior Citizens (SDSC) from Van Buren Township and Waltz, 68 in all, traveled by bus and van to Olympia Stadium in Detroit Dec. 2 for the matinee performance of the Ice Follies.

Many other groups also attended the show including one from the senior center in Romulus as well as hundreds of children accompanied by parents and group leaders.

Everyone enjoyed the spectacular costuming, beautiful lighting, skill of the skaters, antics of the clowns and Sesame Street characters.

The group topped off the day with dinner at the Red Apple Restaurant in Belleville.

Next on the agenda for the SDSC group will be a visit to the Livonia Senior Center on Dec. 28 where a woodcarving demonstration will be held. Members will be invited to try the skill themselves.

Those interested in learning more about the woodcarving art are asked to call 699-7474 to make a reservation. Cost of the trip, which will include lunch, is $5.

The Mobile Library will visit the Van Buren Township Center at 12 noon Dec. 26, the Sumpter Township site the next day, Dec. 27, and New Boston the following day.

Seniors will have the opportunity to return books they checked out the first time the library made its rounds and will again be invited to browse and borrow books from the van.

Anyone having hard cover or paperback books to donate to the Mobile Library is asked to call 699-7474. The Center will be happy to take them off your hands.

The SDS Center at Van Buren Township hall will be closed Dec. 22; Dec. 25 and Dec. 29 due to the holidays.

Eva Lupher hostess to 14 Past Matrons

The annual Christmas party of the Past Matrons' Association of Belleville Chapter No. 73, Order Eastern Star, was held at the home of Past Matron Eva Lupher on Karr Road.

Present for the 12:30 luncheon were 14 members and two guests, the Worthy Matron Kay Parker, and the hostess' niece, Mrs. Carl Kuerth, who assisted with serving.

The house was festive with the season's decorations and pretty tree ornaments were favors at the table.

A short business meeting was conducted by the president Joyce Maki. Cards were signed for two members, Leota Marshall and Irene Skaggs, who are ill.

The hostess presented a unique word game which she had made and awards were won by Joyce Maki and Dorothy Kellas. Gifts were exchanged and a social hour enjoyed.

The January 4 meeting will be held at the First United Methodist Church of Belleville with Joyce Maki hostess.

Choose A Retirement Plan With Security

If You Work For Someone Else...

You can qualify for this tax-sheltered retirement account if you are not currently a participant in any employer-sponsored retirement plan. With an Individual Retirement Custodial Account, you can save up to $1,500 or 15% of your annual earned income (whichever is less) and take the contribution as a tax deduction. In addition, all earnings (interest earned and compounded) on your retirement account are tax-sheltered until retirement. □ An eligible IRA participant can increase retirement benefits and tax savings by opening a Spouse's IRA for a non-employed spouse. The combined total of contributions can be up to $1,750 or 15% of the working spouse's annual compensation (whichever is less). You may start making withdrawals from your IRA Account without penalty between the ages of 59½ and 70½.

Both retirement plans earn 8% interest, paid and compounded quarterly, yielding 8.24% annually. Minimum deposit is $25 and you can make additions of $25 or more any time. Deposits earn from the day of deposit but all deposits made in same calendar year have same maturity date—three years from December 31 of year in which the deposits are made.

If You Work For Yourself...

A self-employed individual can deposit up to a maximum of $7,500 or 15% of his self-employed income (whichever is less) in a Security Keogh Account and take that amount as an income-tax deduction. □ A Keogh Account can also be used to cover income from part-time self-employment even if you are covered by a retirement plan in a full-time job. Such part-time income could include consulting or lecture fees, director's or trustee's fee or income from art work. □ As an employer with a Keogh Account, you must include all employees who have worked for you for 1,000 hours or more for three consecutive years at the same contribution rate you select for yourself.

Withdrawals without penalty are permitted in the case of death or permanent disability. Otherwise Federal law and regulation prohibit the payment of a time deposit prior to maturity unless three months of the interest thereon is forfeited and interest on the amount withdrawn is reduced to the passbook rate. There is also a substantial I.R.S. penalty for early withdrawal.

Ray Charles stairs at MH

Known to millions as the "King of Soul," Ray Charles sings his greatest hits in the warm atmosphere of Detroit's historic Music Hall. Backed by the Raeletts and the Ray Charles Orchestra, Ray Charles' revue opens Dec. 26 and will wrap up with special New Year's Eve show.

At age 48, Ray Charles has become a legend in his own time. He has dipped into more styles of music than almost any other singer, and has come out with a kind of "soul" that reaches out to everyone breaking all barriers of language, culture, and education.

Frank Sinatra once stated, "Ray Charles is the only genius in our business."

Winner of 10 Grammy awards, Ray Charles was selected by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences (1975) as winner of the "Best R & B Vocal Performance — Male" category for his single of Stevie Wonder's "Living for the City."

That same year Ray Charles was presented the Golden Plate Award by the American Academy of Achievement. In 1976 (Continued on Page B-13)

Institute of Arts takes on holiday atmosphere

Special pleasures for Detroit Institute of Arts visitors during the Holiday season include seven newly installed galleries of French decorative arts which opened to the public Dec. 12.

Highlights of the installation are the mid-18th century French drawing room (The Kanzler Room) and the gallery of the Mr. and Mrs. Horace E. Dodge Memorial Collection, displaying precious Sevres porcelain, terra cotta sculptures and fine furniture.

Adjacent galleries are devoted to the display of intricate gold and silver objects, elegant clocks, tapestries, porcelain and furniture in addition to recent acquisitions of paintings and sculptures.

Visitors also can enjoy seasonal decorations appropriate to the period parlors and bedrooms of Whitby Hall, a pre-Revolutionary home, to a formal 18th century dining room and a 17th century Jacobean room in the Art Institute's American Wing. As has been their custom since 1975, the National Society of Colonial Dames of America (Michigan Chapter) will provide the arrangements of greenery.

The exhibition of "Textile Masterpieces" from the permanent collection, which inaugurates a five-gallery area opened only three months ago, will be on view through Jan. 14. The international display includes exquisite Japanese kimono silks, a 17th century English jewel cabinet covered with embroidered and jeweled white satin, and ceremonial robes of Alaska and Africa.

"20th Century Afro-American Art," a selection of works by black artists, including the recent acquisition, "Ancestral Memory" by Hale Woodruff, will be exhibited until Dec. 31.

All the museum's galleries will be open on

Ready to roll

The recently-formed Brothers 3 Electric Service, based in Romulus, is ready for business, lending their expertise in contracting home and business electrical improvements along with a preventative maintenance program serving businesses, home security and fire alarm systems. The firm also handles refrigeration and air conditioning service and installation. William A. Kemp (left), owner and Tim Cottomgin, are shown with one of the two-way radio outfitted trucks on duty 24 hours on emergency calls.—ANP photo.

Westland considers 'turn key' agreement for court

Westland may get a new court building after all, despite the resounding refusal by Westland voters in the November election to finance a facility with a .4 mill tax increase.

The city will advertise for a developer who would be willing to construct a court building on city land, then lease it to the city on a long-term lease arrangement — probably 20 years. At the end of that time, the owner would turn the key over to the city for $1.

The "turn-key" arrangement has consensus approval from the City Council and mayor, who discussed the court operations in a study session recently. It would require no city investment to build, only a continued annual rent payment as is paid now.

Westland voters rejected by a 3 to 1 margin a proposal on the November ballot to increase their taxes to build a new court or renovate a building to be a court.

However, Presiding Judge of the 18th District Court, Evan Callanan, and court administrator Paul Tavana, appeared at a study session with the council recently armed with a list of repairs needed at the court.

Threadbare carpeting, a broken furnace, lack of air conditioning, and need for some rearranging of walls for more office space were just a few of the complaints.

But Callanan said that before getting repairs, he wanted to ask the council if there was some way to find a new home for the court.

"The facility we have now is just not adequate," Callanan said. "I know the Headlee Amendment passed, and the city doesn't have the money, but just how much money do you want to spend on that building?"

The city rents the court building, located on Warren Road just west of Venoy. The judges and City Council have long agreed that the building is too small for the two-judge 18th District Court operation.

The city is now negotiating a lease renewal on the building. The current lease expires in March, and the city will need at least another year there even if it does have a new facility built for it.

Mayor Thomas Taylor outlined other alternatives. The city could go back to the voters and ask approval of the bond issue. The tax question was at the bottom of a long ballot, was proposed "in the middle of a tax revolt," and city and court officials did virtually no campaigning for passage of the issue.

A second option would be "to keep spending money on an inadequate facility," Taylor said.

So the third option, and the one he recommended, is the "lease-purchase" plan that would have a private developer build on city land, collect rent for 20 years then turn it over to the city.

The city owns land behind the police station on Ford Road that is considered the likely spot for the project.

Taylor said he believes the city would have no trouble attracting a developer from the private sector to take on the job, particularly with the guaranteed long-term lease. With the consensus agreement of the council, he will go ahead and advertise for a builder, he said.

Of course, if the council doesn't like the financial figures proposed by private developers, or changes its mind in preference for a different approach, it would have the option of abandoning the turn-key idea.

Christmas tree safety will keep Yule smokeless

The fragrant aroma of an evergreen tree is a Christmas scent, but that scent can turn to smoke if holiday revelers don't observe some basic safety precautions.

Dr. Richard G. Pfister, a Cooperative Extension Service specialist in safety and fire prevention at Michigan State University, estimates that 50 home fires are caused by ignited Christmas trees each year in the state.

"As Christmas approaches, people are pressed for time and may overlook checking tree light strings for brittle insulation, loose sockets or other faults and buying new strings, when necessary," he noted. "If a spark from a short in the lights ignites a dry Christmas tree, it will be completely engulfed in flames in two minutes or less."

Pfister went on to say that, with some cut Christmas trees now sprayed green, it may be difficult to gauge freshness by sight alone. However, there are a few ways to separate the fresh from the dry.

A fresh tree will tend to have fresh looking resin on the lower trunk.

Its needles will be hard to pull from the branches.

Before deciding on a specific tree, bounce it on the ground, the specialist suggested. A shower of needles indicates a dry tree.

Once a fresh evergreen is in the home, you may be able to keep it for about 10 days before it becomes highly flammable. Very few trees will have much moisture in the needles after 10 days.

To monitor the dryness of a Christmas tree, remove a small twig, hold it over the kitchen sink with tongs and light it. If the twig fire dies out after the match is removed, the tree is still fresh, according to Pfister.

Placement of the Christmas tree can be crucial, he went on to say. Place it where it will not block an exit, if there is a fire. And, to preserve the tree's freshness, keep it away from heat sources like registers or television sets, he suggests.

Pfister advised that treating a tree with fire retardant material is rarely successful, compared with placing a fresh tree in a tree holder equipped with a water container that's checked daily.

Bill would trim serious crime along Hines Drive

A bill aimed at cutting down serious crime in Hines Park won easy approval in the State Senate last week and has been sent to the Governor for his signature.

Sponsored by State Rep. Robert Law (R-Livonia, Westland), the bill represents two years' effort to give law enforcement agencies and the courts the tools to make county parks safe recreation spots.

"This new law will have a dramatic impact on Hines Park and other county parks with serious crime problems," Law said. "Violations of park ordinances will be punishable by a $500 fine and up to 90 days in jail.

"But this legislation has an unusual provision that I think will be an even stronger deterrent to crime. Judges may use their discretion to order a work cleanup program in the park in lieu of a fine or jail sentence for people convicted of violations.

"It gives both law enforcement agencies and the courts additional authority, and I think we will see a quick and dramatic drop in the crime rate."

The new law will become effective April 1, 1979.

"The bill was the outgrowth of a task force I chaired for two years, consisting of elected officials, law enforcement officers, judges and interested citizens," Law explained.

ANP News Analysis

Canton Chamber, trustees reverse roles over sign code

By CARRIE YOUNG
ANP Staff Writer

It's a bit more complicated than a mere role-reversal game, since there are no rules to play by, and it certainly is no game.

But the actions and activities recorded at Canton Township's first board meeting with its newly elected public officials put on display was just that — a time for role reversing.

The township board as a whole became the tropped upon underdog to the Canton Chamber of Commerce's heavy and hurting foot.

It was ironically reminiscent of about four years ago when under former Supervisor Robert Greenstein's administration tension took its toll on the underdog merchants being threatened, as never before, by advertising restrictions.

Only this time around the underdog was plainly the public officials.

Some likened the merchants' attack on the unsuspecting public officials to the Japanese surprise attack on Pearl Harbor—one without cause.

Others said the business community was simply at work flexing its muscles in readying for an expected two-year battle with a new, less-business-oriented township board.

Whatever the merchants' reasoning for making a grand stand play for the board's juglar vein clear again on Monday night at a joint session of the township board and the planning commission.

Apparently, peeved by the officials' decision to protect the best interests of the community as a whole by re-enforcing the questioned validity of its existing sign ordinance and re-adopting it, the merchants marched in protest.

Bill Tessian, manager of Wayne Bank, acted as spokesman for the group of miffed merchants.

He said because of an error in publication made three years ago in the existing ordinance that the board should revert to utilizing the antiquated 1965 ordinance, instead of trying to keep intact the 1975's more restrictive measure.

While board members tried unsuccessfully to appease Tessian and fellow merchants by explaining the need to solidify the more updated version and that the board would still continue laboring on a compromise proposed ordinance to replace the 1975 ordinance anyway, merchants wanted more.

What they apparently were pushing for was for the township board to recklessly and irresponsibly abandon a much more tightly written ugn ordinance for a few paragraphs loosely written back in 1965 when there was virtually no business community to speak of, nor a Chamber of Commerce.

With that kind of a wish granted the business merchants would effectively have been given approval to put up any type of sign displays their business senses desired and their pocketbooks could afford.

"It's for everyone's protection that we adopt this ordinance," Robert Greenstein said. It was Greenstein who primarily was put on the defensive by the business community last week even though he now sits on the sidelines as a trustee.

Greenstein, much remembered and maligned by the business community for engineering the controversial sign ordinance prohibiting free-standing roadside signs, flashing neons and string lights, was curiously enough attacked for agreeing to consider relaxing the ordinance in favor of the business community.

"We're acting in good faith by re-adopting this ordinance for the time being allowing us time to work on the proposed ordinance," Greenstein said.

But Gene Andriossi, owner of the Donut Scene said that he knew what was in store for the business community with Greenstein's presence, and he wasn't making an optimistic prediction, he said.

The board's action last Tuesday did not interfere with any of the proposed revisions to a new ordinance and as a matter of record was an attempt to save the merchants from themselves, said some board members.

Had the board continued to let the issue ride of whether a legal ordinance exists, the merchants — as some threatened to do — could have erected oversized signs in hopes of having a court rule the signs to be legal.

But court case precedents show that in most cases with an ordinance or law being on the books for a certain length of time that by its mere existence, it is legal and recognized as such. Thus, it would most likely be ruled enforceable, according to Greenstein, an attorney.

Nonetheless, the merchants in attendance walked around with a heavy and burdensome chip on their shoulders openly groaning and mumbling threats to "get back."

It is clear, though, that the only warming trend came under defeated supervisor Harold Stein's more-business-built board.

The trend just registered a reversal.

Nurses return to work

Frustrated over what they call the county's total disregard for their welfare, Wayne County nurses were back to work last Tuesday after a Circuit Court Judge ordered them to return after a strike.

Involved in the walk-out were 435 nurses of the Wayne County Professional Nurses Council (WCPNC), including 235 of whom are employed at Wayne County General Hospital on Merriman Road in Westland.

The strike, which had been given a 10-day notice by the nurses, was scheduled to begin at midnight Sunday. However, nurses stayed with their patients at Wayne County Hospital until replacements could be found through the direction of the nurses' association.

The nurses assigned to start at 8 a.m. did not report for duty at the hospital. The strike began Dec. 11 when negotiations between county officials and WCPNC representatives broke down, according to Clarence Chien, public relations director for the Michigan Nurses Association.

After most of the county nurses had walked off their jobs — at Wayne County Hospital, Wayne County Health Dept. and other county health locations — Circuit Court Judge William J. Giovan ordered the striking nurses back to work.

The back to work order came after county attorneys filed suit to end what they called an illegal work stoppage.

But even though the nurses said they would obey the order, they are contemplating taking other action to have the county "get down to meaningful bargaining," as they put it.

"These problems have been long-standing for years," Chien said Tuesday. "We understand the county's problems and we're doing our best to work with them. But they're going to have to work with us, too."

"They're going to have to sit down and talk with us and start treating the nurses with some of the professional dignity and courtesy they deserve."

Chien said the Wayne County Labor Board ignored the nurses bargaining unit for more than two months before they agreed to have negotiations. "We tried from Sept. 12 until Nov. 16 to get the county to negotiate with us but they ignored us until we called a press conference on Nov. 16 and said we'd go on strike if there was no progress," Chien said.

"They responded the next day and we had one bargaining session on Nov. 27. Then when we filed the 10-day notice to strike on Nov. 29, we had three bargaining sessions with the county, but still there was no progress."

According to Chien, the nurses felt the walk-out was the only way the county would start to listen to the nurses' needs.

He said that a general meeting of the nurses would be called sometime the latter part of this week to discuss what course the nurses would take. Here are the four proposals council leadership was planning to offer to the membership for their approval:

- 1) Consider mass resignations at Wayne County General Hospital.
- 2) Sanction the hospital for not allowing professional nurses to practice appropriately. For instance, Chien said, the nurses work force is understaffed, supervision won't tell them in what order they'll be laid off and management says the nurses are not worth professional wages.
- 3) Have nurses' legal counsel ask

Judge Giovan to lift his temporary injunction. Chien said there was a big difference between a temporary injunction and an indefinite one.

4) Have Joan S. Goff, R.N., executive director of Michigan Nurses Association, investigate the situation regarding professional nursing standards and make her report to the proper accrediting agencies.

In an earlier press release referring to the contract which expired Nov. 30, Ms. Goff said, "Previously, we voted to extend the contract if there is agreement in negotiations about providing better patient care. We are still hopeful this can be settled before nurses are forced to withhold services."

However, that didn't happen and the nurses' short-lived walk-out Monday was aborted by Judge Giovan's temporary injunction sending them back to work.

According to the nurses, their main concerns are:

Reassignment of nurses to areas not in the best interest of the patient; Inadequate staffing levels; Layoff procedures; and Pay Equity of WCPNC nurses with employees they supervise.

Travelling with baby

If you are planning on a visit out-of-state to visit relatives during the holidays — and you are inexperienced in traveling with a baby — take heart — and relax. That babies travel well — but do you?

For every infant who cries or throws up during a trip, there's likely to be a parent who's fussing even more. Even a newborn senses tensions in the air. If a parent is nervous, baby is bound to recognize it and act accordingly.

Pediatricians agree that most babies are excellent travelers. The easiest time to travel with a baby is during the first six months. Baby is eminently portable then, relatively immobile and able to sleep as long as there's a snug spot to nestle into. What's more, infants find the motion and hum of cars, planes and trains very soothing.

However, it's advisable to check with your doctor before setting out, especially if it's going to be an extended stay.

Try to plan every element of the trip in advance. Thorough preparation can make the difference between triumph or disaster.

Here are some basic rules for traveling with an infant:

- 1) Baby should be comfortably dressed to suit the season in a familiar outfit rather than new, stiff clothes.
- 2) Baby should be fed normally in the period just before the trip. The idea that a child must store up strength for a trip is a fallacy.
- 3) Bring along enough equipment to make things comfortable — a car seat, an extra blanket, a familiar toy, a container of disposable, pre-moistened baby wash cloths for spit-ups and spills, and disposable diapers.

Prepackaged formulas that need no refrigeration are incredibly convenient. If you must stay with baby's regular formula, bring along a portable cooler for use in car or bus. On plane or train, refrigeration usually will be available to you.

If you are a nursing mother, be aware that traveling may cause your milk supply to diminish temporarily. Ask your doctor to suggest a supplementary formula in case this should happen.

A portable baby carrier helps. You can tuck little necessities in around the edges of it. Bring along a small suitcase for extra clothing plus a waterproof bag for soiled diapers and clothes.

For yourself, wear something that will withstand musing and soil. Traveling with an infant can be messy.

If you're making a trip by car, keep baby in a car seat, not on your lap. Sit in the back seat instead of the front — it's safer.

Spill clogs drain

BY TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

While Westland, Wayne Fire Departments and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency clean up a volatile mess of 3,000 gallons of paint solvent, Westland Police said that they are continuing their investigation and "have no comment" how the spillage occurred.

On Dec. 9, some 10 valves of tanks containing paint solvents which involved compounds of ethyleneglycolmono ethyl, a solvent for making paint, were found open at the Argo Paint Company, 550 South Edwin, and the solvent flooded the company's plant and found its way to the Leng Drain.

The waters from the drain eventually flow to the Rouge River.

Units from the Westland and Wayne fire departments rushed to the scene on Saturday and began creating dikes in order to flush out the solvent.

"Initially there was a tremendous amount of vapors in the area," said Ross Powers, of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. "Because of the potential danger, the fire departments were immediately notified."

"I was informed (Dec. 12) that the danger had dissipated and that most of the solvent has vaporized."

Powers said that the police and his department are investigating how the spill occurred. He said that during his discussion with the Argo Paint Company's safety director it was learned that 10 valves were left open during the day.

"We were told that some person unknown had opened the valves," Powers said. "It will be pretty difficult to prove who, if anyone, was responsible for the act - but it is the company's responsibility for the clean-up operation."

According to fire officials, there were at least 10 different kinds of paint solvents mixed in the spill and that a blend of alcohol made the mixture "highly inflammable."

"However, the solvent evaporates very rapidly," said Neil Prieskorn, assistant fire chief for Wayne. "We checked our part of the drain and we could get no explosive readings on our J & W Combustible gas detector."

Assistant Westland Fire Chief Tom Possler said that his men built dikes to isolate the solvent and give it a good slushing down.

"We have diluted the solvent with water laying in the ditches," Possler continued, "and we are pumping out those ditches. We also have taken flammability tests and the danger has apparently subsided because we don't get a reading on our meters."

Sgt. Donovan Huseman, who is in charge of the investigation, said that the investigation is incomplete and he wouldn't, at present, wish to speculate on how the spill occurred or if anyone was responsible for the act.

In record numbers

Florida lures Michiganians for holidays

The winter migration of vacationing Michiganians to the surf, sand and sunshine of Florida could reach record levels by Christmas and continue that way through Easter, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Helping attract Michiganians to the Sunshine State are luxurious new resorts, added family attractions and the Super Bowl," said Auto Club touring manager Joseph Ratke. "More than half of our yearly auto routing requests to Florida are made during the December-to-March period."

"With Easter falling mid-April, interest in Florida in Florida vacations should last until then."

Surveys show that Michigan ranks second to Ohio as a state of origin for motorists entering the Sunshine State.

"Florida has become such a popular destination for winter-weary travelers that many hotels and motels with ocean or beachfront facilities are booked for the next five months," Ratke said. "With the NFL Super Bowl in Miami on Jan. 21, Miami-Fort Lauderdale accommodations are scarce Jan. 14-28."

"The Christmas-New Year's period also is booked heavily, with deluxe lodging space disappearing rapidly for the February through April period as well."

"The three Disney World hotels are booked for March and April, with only scattered dates available now through February," he added.

Michiganians traveling south this winter will find many new attractions. The Florida Hurricane—a 3,500-foot-long roller coaster which reaches speeds of up to 60 miles per hour and has a 90-foot vertical drop—is part of a $6-million park expansion program at Haines City's Circus World.

Sea World in Orlando will open the first phase of its 10-year, $100-million expansion program in 1979. Initial attractions include a Florida Fauna and Cap'n Jack's World theme areas.

Hurricane Rapids is a new Disney attraction in Homestead. It is a five-story, man-made mountain with three, 425-foot concrete flumes winding in and out of six tunnels to a large pool. Other Disney waterslides are located at Lake Worth, Kissimmee, Tampa and Homosassa Springs. Kissimmee also has the new Skateboard World.

In Jupiter, the new Burt Reynolds Dinner Theatre will present theater entertainment starring top-name performers from Jan. 30 to May 13. The Miami Seaquarium has been spruced up by a $500,000 expansion and renovation program. Miami's Planet Ocean has added six new exhibits, including the world's first indoor hurricane.

Arvida, one of Florida's larger land developers, is completing the first phase of its Sawgrass golf and tennis resort at Ponte Vedra Beach. New motel or hotel facilities also have opened in Jacksonville, St. Augustine, Lake Worth, Fort Lauderdale, Miami and Key West.

Approximately 90 percent of Michigan vacationers will arrive in Florida by car although new lower fares are encouraging air travel.

Southern Michigan motorists should plan on using 2½ days to reach the Florida state line and 3½ days to Miami.

A Christmas story

By GEORGE PLAGENZ
United Features Syndicate

My favorite Santa Claus story—the one that proved to me beyond all doubt that Santa is for real—is about Charles Howard, a department store Santa in Kansas City who used to visit children in the hospitals at Christmastime after closing hours at the store.

One year, during the week before Christmas, he went in to see Nancy, an emaciated polio victim who was being kept alive by motors and gadgets. Before Howard went in the room, the nurses told him it might be her last Christmas.

When Nancy saw him, dressed in his Santa Claus suit, her eyes seemed to speak and her little pain-racked body quivered with excitement.

"She wants to kiss you, Santa," said her mother, who read Nancy's lips.

Howard leaned down and felt Nancy's one good arm around his neck.

"I wasn't worth a darn after that," he said. Before he left, Nancy gave him three sticks of candy.

That night Howard couldn't sleep. The next morning he wrote Nancy a letter. He told her how wonderful it had been to see her and how his excited reindeer made him divide up these three pieces of candy so each one of them could have a piece.

"When I tucked Dancer in bed," Howard wrote, "he had his piece under his pillow."

Two days after he wrote the letter, a nurse called on Howard at the department store. From the instant Nancy read the letter, she said, a change came over her.

"I think she is going to get well," said the nurse.

A year later Howard, from his department store Santa's throne, saw a little girl in braces running to him. It was Nancy.

"You can't always work a miracle like that," Howard said later, "but you can try."

Some religious leaders will not be happy with this story. They feel that it is wrong to teach children to believe in a pagan saint. But Christmas for children doesn't have to be a matter of "Santa or Jesus"—one or the other.

Parents still can emphasize that "the baby Jesus is our best Christmas present." But they also can encourage their young children to believe in Santa Claus.

"Talking about the spirit of giving does nothing for a child," says the famed psychologist Dr. Bruno Bettelheim.

"But if the child has the experience of believing in—and more important, of LOVING—Santa Claus, then he will come to understand what Christmas is about on its most basic level."

According to Bettelheim: "Without concrete beginnings, abstract ideas (such as the spirit of giving) may remain empty shells. Believing in Santa is not only a pleasure in itself. It is an important step in developing adult concepts."

If we want our children to develop a healthy understanding and mastery of reality, says the psychologist, "we must make it possible for them to enjoy childhood fantasies."

There is "legal precedent" for Bettelheim's views. It comes from Judge John H. Hatther, who was presiding judge of the West Virginia Supreme Court in 1926 when he wrote his 1,000-word judicial opinion of Santa Claus.

If you are one of those foolish enough to believe there isn't a real live Santa Claus who comes down chimneys on Christmas Eve, you had better steer clear of West Virginia, for the decision handed down in that state 52 years ago has never been reversed.

The other four judges on the bench concurred with Hatcher in his opinion—and judges are not men who are easily swayed by falsehoods and lies.

Hatcher opened his opinion by tracing the history of Santa Claus from the early Christian bishop—

St. Nicholas—through the Dutch Santa Claus and down to our own American Santa.

"But what do children care about history?" the wise judge wrote. "They believe in the actual physical existence of Santa Claus... the jolly old man who labors diligently throughout the year at his home near the North Pole... who, on the night before Christmas, piles his sleigh high with gifts and, drawn by marvelous reindeer, covers the world in one wild ride—and yet pauses long enough at each home to leave his presents.

"In this kindly gentleman there is no guile... except perhaps in his manner of entering houses by way of the chimney. The very thought of him inspires attendance at Sunday School and good behavior generally for a few weeks before yuletide."

Then the judge turned his attention to Santa's detractors.

"I am glad their number is few," he wrote, "and I warn them: Keep clear of this court!"

In every phase of life we face this recurring question:

What think ye of Christ?

In youth, too happy to think -- I've plenty of time.

In manhood, too busy to think -- I must make a living.

In maturity, too anxious to think -- I've more urgent problems.

In declining years, too old to think -- my pattern of life is set.

As death approaches, too ill to think -- my sensibilities are dulled and my mind is weary.

In death, too late to think -- the spirit is flown, the day of opportunity is past, the harvest is gone and now God's judgment day.

MAKE US AN OFFER!

At Toyota Ann Arbor, we still have plenty of new Toyotas in stock... and we'd sure like to get rid of them fast. In fact, we're so anxious to sell you a new Toyota that we'll take less profit per car than ever before.

That includes unbelievable deals like these: $150 over dealer cost on all automatics;

$150 over dealer cost on all demo's. And just $50 over dealer cost on all trucks.

Why are we making the sacrifice? Simple: with the demand for Toyotas so fierce now, we'll only get more later if we sell more now.

So, you've got us where you want us.

Come in and make us an offer.

QUICK CASH!

If you're like most other folks around here, some extra cash would come in handy right now! And it might be easier to come by than you think! Look around the house and pick out the items you never use any more. Then pick up your phone and place an inexpensive Classified Ad offering these items for sale. It will be no time at all before your phone will start ringing and you can get together with prospective buyers. That's what we call QUICK CASH!

The Saga of Ebenezer Squeezer

Ebenezer was a saver. Saved string, all sorts of things. Finally one day as he was searching through his cluttered abode, he became hopelessly lost amid the knicks and the knacks and the whats and the nots and was never heard from again.

Poor Ebenezer, if he had only known that he could have converted those no longer used items into quick cash by using the Want Ads. Life would have been beautiful... neater... more profitable.
